Rebels hit Mekong River town

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Rebel gunners shelled the besieged Mekong River town of Neak Luong and the Phnom Penh airport Saturday, killing or wounding at least three dozen soldiers and civilians in a continuing drive to choke the capital off from much needed supplies, military sources reported.

Fuel is already short in Phnom Penh, and two days ago the government slapped down new rationing measures. Electricity and water are now cut off to some sections of the city during the day and gasoline for private use can only be purchased two days a week and one gallon at a time.

In other Indochina developments:

—Viet Cong terrorists hurled explosives at a Saigon police station, killing one policeman and wounding seven, authorities said. North Vietnamese gunners scored three hits on South Vietnamese aircraft, downing a helicopter in the Mekong Delta and an A37 jet bomber near the Cambodian border. All 12 persons aboard the chopper were killed and the bomber pilot was missing, officials reported. Another chopper was hit 55 miles west of Saigon but limped safely to base with one dead, the Saigon command said.

— The North Vietnamese communist party newspaper Nhan Dan blasted President Ford's State of the Union message for not mentioning the Vietnam cease-fire "and the wrongdoings of the United States in South Vietnam and the rest of Indochina." Nhan Dan said Ford "deliberately glosses over the increasing U.S. military involvement and intervention in South Vietnam. This is a critical silence."

Cambodian rebels rained nearly 100 mortar and cannon rounds into the besieged garrison of Neak Luong, which is crammed with an estimated 75,000 refugees. Thirty soldiers were reported killed or wounded, but the civilian toll was not known.

The Khmer Rouge rebels mounted fierce pressure on the riverside naval base 32 miles southeast of Saigon for more than a week in their drive to choke off permanently Phnom Penh's major ground supply route. No shipping has reached the capital since Dec. 20.

Insurgent gunners also sent four 107mm Chinese-built rockets shrieking into Phnom Penh's Pochentong airbase, killing a child and wounding six persons.

A senior U.S. official says that since the Khmer Rouge launched their offensive New Year's Day, more than 10,000 persons have been killed or wounded on both sides.

Years ago people traded animal furs for all the necessities of life, however, Saturday on the State Fairgrounds furs were traded for cold cash. Ford seeks support from organized labor

WASHINGTON (AP) — After assuring William E. Simon that he would stay on as Treasury secretary, President Ford Saturday night sought to win organized labor's support for his economic and energy proposals.

Ford conferred privately with Simon at the White House and issued a ringing endorsement of his chief economic spokesman, who has been the focus of recent reports that his Cabinet status was in danger.

Later, at a union dinner, Ford embraced AFL-CIO President George Meany, who a few days ago had denounced Ford's economic and energy proposals as inequitable.

Then Ford commended Meany "for the statesmanship, energy and vision he has demonstrated in helping develop solutions to our national difficulties."

The Republican President appeared to be inviting a compromise with his liberal Democratic critics when he told the testimonial dinner for Robert A. Georgine, head of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department: "Let us not get hung up on differences over the details of the program before the Congress. The problem is too pressing. Too many Americans are out of work. Let us join together in starting the process, in maintaining forward momentum," the President said.

Ford told Meany and Georgine that "the White House door is open to you. I need your help."

The President concluded with a plea for support. "When America wins, labor wins," he said. "And all Americans are in this together."

Also on Ford's schedule for Saturday night was an appearance at a party honoring Sen. Barry Goldwater.

The endorsement of Simon was disclosed after a private White House meeting between Ford and the Treasury secretary.

White House officials also have forecast a gradual change in Cabinet membership. When asked Saturday about other Cabinet members, White House Press Secretary told reporters, "We'll get to them as we go along ... they are all serving there because the President wants them to."

White House aides, meanwhile, were sorting through dozens of speaking invitations to chart a series of about 10 speeches by the President throughout the country in the next six weeks.

Nessen said the first of the speeches will come Wednesday night when Ford addresses the Conference Board, a prestigious group of about 800 board chairmen and presidents of major corporations meeting in Washington.

NBC News said it would televise an interview with Ford live from the White House Thursday evening.

The developments came as Ford surveyed stiffening congressional and political opposition to major elements of the economic and energy programs.

Chinese legislators appoint Chou En-lai

TOKYO (AP) — The first meeting of China's top legislative body in a decade has reappointed ailing Chou En-lai premier, filled the vacant defense minister's job with one of his closest friends and adopted a revised constitution.

It also claimed a power struggle between the United States and the Soviet Union was growing more intense and said it could lead to world war.

The Monday-Friday session of the Fourth National People's Congress, disclosed Saturday by the official Hsinhua news agency, and a prior meeting of the party Central Committee left the 76-year-old Chou more powerful than ever politically and administratively.

The decisions they took represented a victory for Chou's moderate policy of detente at home and abroad and a rebuff to the hardline radical wing of the party led by Chairman Mao Tse-tung's wife, Chiang Ching.

They also appeared likely to restore a sense of normalcy to a nation wracked by uncertainties since the turbulence of the Cultural Revolution.

Yeh Chien-ying, 75, an old drinking companion of the premier and the man who during the 1920's nursed him through a critical illness, took over as defense minister, a post he has unofficially filled since the death in 1971 of Lin Piao, Mao's heir-designate. Lin currently is the butt of a nationwide campaign of the denunciation for having plotted to kill both Mao and Chou.

The Central Committee also raised another old friend of Chou's, Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, 75, to the party vice chairmanship and membership on the nine-man Politburo's standing committee.

Chou En-lai

The new constitution of the People's Republic of China — not yet published — appeared to have abolished the post of the chief of state held by Mao until 1959.

Armed protestors storm U.S. Embassy in Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Thousands of chanting demonstrators armed with firebombs, iron bars and sticks stormed the U.S. Embassy and a British cultural office in Nicosia and the British Embassy in Athens on Saturday.

They ransacked offices and made bonfires out of the debris. U.S. Marines fired tear gas grenades in Nicosia but no casualties were reported in the incidents.

The demonstrations were called to protest Britain's decision to evacuate 10,000 Turkish Cypriot refugees from British bases on Cyprus to Turkey. The Cyprus government says the British move supports what it claims are Turkish plans to partition the island.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said most American personnel had left the U.S. embassy in Nicosia before the attack by an estimated 5,000 demonstrators. He said the State Department expressed "grave concern" to the Cypriot government over the attack and that "we have made it clear that we expect the Cypriot government to provide full protection for the embassy and all American personnel in Cyprus. The government of Cyprus has assured us they will provide the necessary protection."

U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies was killed during an attack on the American Embassy in Nicosia last August as anti-American feeling boiled over in the wake of Turkey's invasion of Cyprus.

Greek-Cypriots still harbor anti-American feelings on grounds the United States did nothing to prevent the Turkish invasion.

The rock-throwing, youthful demonstrators pushed aside barbed wire barricades manned by Greek-Cypriot police and armed troops to storm the U.S. Embassy.

David Grimland, U.S. Embassy information officer, said the youths "set fire to five embassy cars in the parking lot and broke into the building itself, setting fire and ransacking ground floor rooms."

Witnesses said the demonstators threw furniture, typewriters and chairs out of windows and made bonfires of broken furniture. They said U.S. Marine guards fired tear gas grenades but to no avail. Police later dispersed the youths.

Two hours later a second wave of about 1,000 demonstrators, many brandishing iron bars and sticks and chanting "Kissinger Murderer," and "Filthy Imperialists," advanced on the embassy, sweeping aside a dozen Greek-Cypriot policemen behind a barbed wire barricade.

Armed Greek-Cypriot national guard troops, including three armored cars outside the embassy, did nothing to stop the demonstrators.

The second attack broke off with the arrival of six armored personnel carriers of the Canadian contingent of the United Nations peace force on the island.

Dispute over CIA spy operation still open

WASHINGTON (AP) — Intelligence chief William E. Colby's disclosure of CIA spy operations inside the United States has not ended a dispute over whether the agency mounted a massive illegal domestic intelligence operation.

Colby's admission that "files were established on about 10,000 citizens" in the agency's counterintelligence unit would indicate a massive operation. However, his 45-page statement does not make clear exactly how much of the information in those files was gathered through legal surveillance of Americans abroad and how much was produced by questionable spy activities at home.

Colby also acknowledged that the agency "recruited or inserted" 22 persons into American dissident groups in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Twenty-two undercover agents over seven years does not sound massive, but former intelligence officials say a large staff would be required to support that many agents.

Whether these 22 individuals were in fact undercover agents is not certain. Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said former CIA director Richard M. Helms made the operation sound "much more innocuous" than Colby did.

Some instances simply consisted of assigning a CIA employe to attend a rally or demonstration, Cannon quoted Helms as saying.

Nor is it certain that infiltrating American radical groups violates the CIA charter. The 1947 National Security Act prohibits the CIA from performing any internal security functions but also directs the agency to protect its methods and sources.

According to Colby, 12 of the agents were infiltrated into U.S. radical groups "in order to establish credentials for operations abroad." The 10 other agents were infiltrated in an effort to learn of possible attacks on agency installations, he said.

Other domestic operations acknowledged by Colby would seem to fall more clearly into the category of protecting methods and sources.

Between 1961 and 1965, the agency tapped the phones of 21 U.S. residents "to check on leaks of classified information," Colby said. All but two were agency employes or former employes and in both those cases the taps were approved by the attorney general, according to Colby.

But Colby also acknowledged that "in 1971 and 1972 physical surveillance was ... employed against five Americans who were not CIA employes," again to check on leaks of classified information. According to a former CIA officer familiar with agency surveillance techniques, at least 15 agents are required to keep one person under watch around the clock.

Among the more questionable domestic activities acknowledged by Colby was the opening of mail between the United States and "two Communist countries" from 1953 to 1973. Melvin Crain, who said he quit the agency in 1959 because of the mail opening program, has publicly stated that "the officer who briefed us admitted that it was unconstitutional, illegal and in violation of the agency's charter but said it was necessary to carry out our mission."

Colby's admission that the CIA kept files on congressmen will undoubtedly spur questions from the congressional panels which have begun CIA inquiries.

Colby said the agency had a counterintelligence file on one unidentified former member of Congress, as well as "other files on current or former members of Congress." Some of the other files involved such things as security clearances, Colby said, but others were "developed in the course of our foreign intelligence operations."

Approve action by judge

Although few readers responded to last Sunday's Democrat-Capital Survey, they all agreed with the release of three participants in the Watergate scandal.

Readers were asked: "Judge John Sirica has freed John Dean, Jeb Magruder and Herbert Kalmbach from prison after they served only parts of their sentences for the Watergate affair. Do you agree with the judge's decision?"

One reader said, "I agree with the judge and think that Nixon should be punished rather than the above named. He benefitted rather than any of them."

Another said the three men "shouldn't have been put there in the first place."

And Vincent Cutler, Route 1, wrote: "I think Judge John Sirica probably had thought he did the right thing in freeing these men ... In his studies, he probably found out they were just carrying out orders." He also said he thought it was "wrong for the taxpayers to have to keep up a large expense account on the San Clemente place ..."

One unidentified reader said, "Dean, Magruder and Kalmbach were properly punished. It has to be remembered they weren't murderers or rapists. I think the punishment, including uublic embarrassment, they received is enough."

Ann Landers

Helpful mother hurt by rude daughter

Dear Ann Landers: I live alone. So does my grown daughter. Her place is 15 miles out of town. Last month she had the flu so I ran back and forth to take care of her.

Sunday after I had fixed her supper and cleaned her house I drove myself home. I realized I should have taken her washing to do the next day. I phoned and offered. She said: "Thanks, Mom. Come on back and get it."

Well, Ann, I drove back, picked up her laundry and was just about to sit down and chat for a few minutes when she said, "Don't sit down, Mom. Mom. I have company coming in a few minutes — someone you don't get along with."

I was so hurt I cried all the way home. I couldn't for the life of me think of a friend of hers with whom I don't get along.

That was four weeks ago. We have talked on the phone often since then and she has been to my home several times, but I can't bring myself to go to her place. She has asked why but the words won't come. I am unable to tell her how badly she hurt my feelings. Am I getting senile, crazy or what? Please help me. — Tongue-Tied Mom.

Dear Mom: Untie your tongue today. Write the words on a piece of paper and read them to your daughter on the phone — if you must. But get over this block at once.

Ask her point-blank which friend she was referring to the day you came back for her laundry and she asked you not to stay. Make it short and direct. Once you clear the air you will feel better. And so will she.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17-year-old girl and am very mature for my age. I am in love with a boy who is 19. Hal is very handsome and sweet, but he has some growing-up to do. We've been going together off and on for two years and have talked about getting married at least a dozen times. I'm sure he was sincere.

About five weeks ago Hal told me he met a girl who was "a few years older" than himself. (I later found out she was 23.) She is crazy about him. He lost his job three weeks ago and this girl has been helping him financially. She has a very fine position and a little inherited money from her grandmother. He told me yesterday that he is going to marry her and wants me to come to the wedding.

I nearly went into shock. He quieted me down and said: "This will probably be temporary. You and I will wind up together — if you are patient and really love me."

I do love this guy, Ann. Please tell what should my next move be? Shaken at the Roots

Dear Roots: Buy a pair of track shoes and run as fast as you can — in the opposite direction. Hal is very poor husband material, as his bride-to-be will soon find out. Consider yourself lucky she got him instead of you.

Dear Ann Landers: On occasion you print "rules" for parents on how to break up a marriage.

I have an addition to your list which is guaranteed to work if all else should fail. It is this: If there are grandchildren, be sure to favor one over the others. This will create such havoc between the parents that they will be in a continual state of turmoil and a reasonably good marriage can be knocked to pieces. Seen it Happen

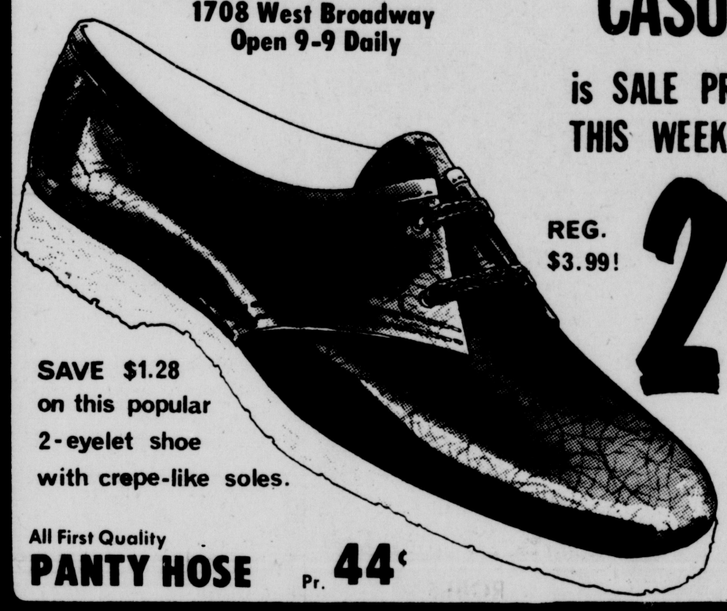

Dear Seen: I'll take your word for it. Thanks for writing.

Woman's year needs man's touch

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — International Women's Year 1975 has arrived and its organizers at the United Nations have a problem. They need male involvement on a large scale.

"I am very interested in seeing that enough men attend" the Women's Year world conference from June 23 to July 4 at Mexico City, says U.N. Assistant Secretary-General Helvi Sipila.

Mrs. Sipila, of Finland, has been named secretary-general of Women's Year and of its main event, the international conference.

Male involvement is essential, she said recently, because "women alone can't change what has to be changed" to create true equality. Governments, run mostly by males, have to be influenced.

"We are emphasizing that there should be both men and women attending," Mrs. Sipila said. She said it was a good sign that many countries have named men to head their delegations. Ideally, delegations should be made up half of men and half of women, she said.

Mrs. Sipila began the year with trips to Western Europe and the Middle East to drum up support and funds for the Women's Year programs.

U.N. officials hope to collect between $2 million and $3 million for Women's Year activities, including $370,000 for the conference itself. About $800,000 has been received, they said. The largest contributions are $500,000 from Sweden and $100,000 from the United States.

Women's Year activity actually began Dec. 10 when Princess Ashraf Pahlevi of Iran presented Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim a declaration of support endorsed by 58 heads of states.

Waldheim then proclaimed 1975 International Women's Year, declaring that "we must frankly admit" that there is still a wide gulf between the principle of equality of the sexes and the practice.

"Despite the advances of the past 30 years," Waldheim said, "discrimination against women remains a pervasive fact of life in many countries and thus represents a major obstacle to real social, economic and political progress in the world."

Waldheim stressed that discrimination against women means discrimination against "half the population of this planet."

DIANE SAYS...

When making curtains many wonder just how to figure for just the right amount of fullness. If you are making sheer curtains that are to be used alone, three times the width of the window is the most attractive. But if you are using these under draperies, two times the window width is best. After you have decided how much fullness is needed and how long the curtains are to be—figure the yardage for whatever width fabric you are using and allow another one-third yard. This will allow for a three-inch hem and ½ inch turn under and the rest is used for the headings. If you are going to use these on traverse rods the extra fabric will be enough to enclose the bucrom used in the heading for pinch pleats or if you plan to use pleater tape fold this fabric so that you will have a doubled hem behind the pleater tape. The doubled layer gives more support and hides raw edges. If you are planning a simple heading on your curtains allow ½ yard for hems and headings.

Curtains are being made from a variety of fabrics. Consider this when you shop.

Child neglect charges dropped against woman

A child neglect charge against a Johnson County woman was dismissed Thursday by Pettis County Circuit Judge Frank Meyer.

Mrs. Sharon Radi was charged with child neglect, which resulted in the death of her infant daughter in July, 1972.

Mrs. Radi had filed a motion to dismiss the case in June, 1973 on grounds the state did not provide enough information against her.

The case was in Pettis County on a change of venue from Johnson County. Mrs. Radi has been free on $1,000 bond.

Mrs. Radi and her husband, William Radi Jr., originally were charged with second-degree murder in the death of the infant. This charge was reduced to manslaughter.

A Cass County Circuit Court jury found Radi not guilty of manslaughter in May, 1973. The charge against Mrs. Radi was dropped and the child neglect charge was then filed.

The charge alleges she did not provide adequate clothing, lodging or medical attention to the child. The 3½ month old child died at Whiteman AFB Hospital. Johnson County Coroner Dr. Keith Jones testified the child died of malnutrition and dehydration.

In other court news, Jackie Dale Davis, Clinton, entered a plea of guilty Thursday in Circuit Court to a charge of second degree burglary and stealing.

His sentencing was deferred to Feb. 2, when a pre-sentencing report is due.

He allegedly broke into the Western Auto store in Clinton on Jan. 16, 1974, and took eight television sets and one stereo.

The case was in Pettis County on a change of venue from Henry County. Davis is free on $5,000 bond.

The change of venue was filed on June 4 in Clinton. However, the next day Circuit Judge Kelso Journey disqualified himself. On June 13, the Missouri Supreme Court appointed Pettis County Circuit Judge Frank Meyer to the case.

Soviet officials 'not talking' about Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — Officials were either unavailable or not talking Saturday about an Indian news report that Leonid I. Brezhnev has relinquished his duties as Communist party leader because of illness.

The report did not say he had resigned. PTI said Brezhnev "evidently is resting and undergoing treatment not far from Moscow.

NFO post vandalized

Vandals knocked out the windows of the National Farmers Organization collection point building, east of LaMonte on Highway 50, shortly after midnight Friday.

The Pettis County sheriff's department said two persons are believed to have used boards to break 14 8-by-30-inch windows and eight 24-inch-by-30-inch windows.

No damage estimate was given.

An NFO employe told The Democrat-Capital Friday the vandals "pretty well wrecked the whole place."

The sheriff's department is still investigating the incident.

Economists predict slow results from Ford plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Ford has shifted from fighting inflation to fighting recession, Americans shouldn't expect the new Ford program to bring a faster end to the nation's economic ills, administration economists say.

They predict the recession still will run the same course that it would run without the Ford program, although it could be slightly less severe.

"Recovery will come with or without additional stimulus, and should occur by the middle of the year whether we have the President's program in place or not," said Edgar R. Fielder, assistant secretary of the treasury for economic affairs.

But he said in an interview he believes Ford's proposals, if adopted, "will make for a better recovery than would otherwise occur."

Another economist, James. L. Pate, an assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, believes the recession's end will be determined by the size of business inventories this year, rather than any government stimulous.

"Until excessive inventories are reduced, there is very little prospect for resumption in growth," Pate said. He said he hopes the bulk of the inventories will be worked off by the second quarter of this year.

The biggest backlog of inventories are unsold automobiles. Full-scale auto production is unlikely to resume until this backlog is cleared.

Pate said the tax cuts proposed by the President and the Congress would help reduce business inventories through increased consumer purchases, but he added that the main spending activity probably would not occur until the second half of the year when the business recovery should already be underway.

Pate agreed with Fiedler that Ford's tax cut program should result in a business recovery "more rapid than the sluggish recovery we've previously forecast."

But Pate said there probably wouldn't be much decrease in the rate of unemployment until near the end of the year. In part, this is because businesses usually delay their hiring of workers until several months or more after business conditions have improved.

Fiedler estimated Ford's proposed $16 billion tax rebate for 1974, to be paid in May and September, would, by itself, contribute to only a four-tenths of one per cent decline in the nation's unemployment rate by the end of 1976.

With respect to inflation, Ford's proposed $30 billion energy tax probably will add about two per cent to consumer prices next year, and Pate said that may keep the inflation rate higher than the 6 to 7 per cent he had forecast for the end of 1975.

Economic outlook

H. E. (Gene) Blaine, president of American Electrical Industries, discusses future plans for Sedalia's newly-named plant. Local plant manager Bob Hardwick (center) and company marketing vice-president, Clarence Smitherman (right), agree that the economic forecast for three-fourths of 1975 is gloomy. However, they expect an economic recovery and normal business by 1976.

Local company reports on industrial activities

A reception and luncheon Saturday morning at Ramada Inn, 3501 West Broadway, presented a somewhat optimistic outlook for the newly-named American Electrical Industries Sedalia Works located on Highway 50.

More than 300 plant employes and local civic and government leaders attended the event.

The firm began operations in Sedalia in 1968 as Olin Conductors, a supplier of electrical conductor products to utility and distributor-contractor markets. In January, 1974, Olin merged with Conalco Inc., and the company became known as Concalco Conductors. Recently Conalco sold its conductor division to Swiss Aluminum Limited (Alusuisse) of Zurich, Switzerland, but retained the name Southern Electrical Cable Co. In September, 1974, the company officially became known as American Electrical Industries with headquarters in Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. E. (Gene) Blaine, president and chief executive officer of American Electrical Industries gave an optimistic report on company plans for the Sedalia plant, despite the "utility market's depressed condition."

Blaine said the company does not intend to limit its activities to wire and cable, but plans to diversify through mergers and acquisitions, and through building new electrical businesses.

In other action, Clarence C. Smitherman, company vice-president for marketing, gave a slide presentation designed to acquaint the group with products manufactured at the plant here.

The Sedalia plant manufactures insulated conductor cables and wire products which carry electricity into and throughout homes, apartments and office buildings, he said.

However, the utilities industry is suffering from fuel shortages, increased operating costs and inflationary pressures, with the only relief being rate increases, or reduced output service, Blaine said.

Discussing the company's economic outlook, Blaine said, "We remain optimistic that general business-product demand will improve in late 1975.

The reception ended with plaque presentations made by the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council to American Electrical Industries.

'Head Chopper' hits residents of Skid Row

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On Skid Row, where each man wrestles his own demons, winos and derelicts are now haunted by a new fear. They call him "The Head Chopper."

An unknown killer, known to police as "the throat slasher," has murdered six men in the area in the past seven weeks. All had their throats slit.

Four of the dead men were derelicts and were found in alleys.

At the Union Rescue Mission, the area's hub, the dead men are remembered and the living worry that they could be next.

"Everyone likes to think they're playing it cool, that they're not scared," said Eugene Gideon, who lives at the mission. "You can bet your bottom dollar they're concerned ... everybody's a little uptight."

Drunks frequently sleep on the street but Gideon says more are coming to the misson for shelter.

"Before this dude started chopping throats there were 10 or 12 vacant beds. Now I notice they're full," he said.

Smithton school opens after furnace trouble

Classes will resume Monday morning at the Smithton school, according to School Superintendant Wendell Ware.

The school was closed Thursday and Friday due to malfunction of the furnace in the junior and senior high school section of the building.

Saturday night Ware said the furnace had been repaired, "and there shouldn't be anymore problems."

Ware said though one section of the building was affected by the malfunctioning furnace the whole school was closed, "because we couldn't see much sense in only having some of the students here."

The furnace shut off Wednesday afternoon but workmen were able to repair it temporarily. Later Wednesday night it stopped again.

Ware said this was the first time the school had problems with the 1953 furnace.

Local break-in results in loss of over $1,100

Property valued at $1,169 was taken from a local resident Saturday morning, police reported.

Mary Lou Janssen, 804 West 16th, told police the items were taken from her home before 10 a.m. Saturday.

Police said entry was gained by prying the lock off a back door. The items were taken from a bedroom.

Missing after the break-in were antique silver dollars, two dollars in cash, a jewelry box and its contents.

In other police news, Harvey Brothers Implement Co., 305 West Main, was broken into late Friday night or early Saturday morning and over $400 worth of tools were taken.

Vernon Harvey, an employe, told police two body sanders, valued at $300; three electric drills, valued at $100 and small hand tools were missing.

Entry to the building was gained through a back window, police said.

Steve Hunt, Kansas City, told police Friday morning a diamond ring, valued at $350, was taken from his room at Ramada Inn.

Thieves broke into Vinson's Market, 2700 South Ingram, late Thursday night and took $6 in coins, a shotgun valued at $15 and a high-powered rifle valued at $50, along with about eight pounds of lunch meat, police report.

The break-in was discovered Friday morning by Johnnie Vinson, 301 East 28th, when he opened the shop.

Entry was gained by prying a bar off a window on the east side of the building.

Question

Is my widowed mother eligible for Social Security disability benefits even though she is not yet 60 years old, and I am willing to support her?

Answer

Your ability and willingness to support your mother have no bearing upon her entitlement to a widow's disability benefit. She is eligible if:

1. Your father was insured under Social Security
2. She is disabled as defined by Social Security regulations
3. She is over age 50, and became disabled within 7 years of your father's death; or if she became disabled while receiving benefits as a mother, or within 7 years thereafter.

Eagle Scout recalls early days with Ford

By CAROL RUMMEL
Port Huron Times Herald

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — The summer of '29 holds a lot of memories for Joseph K. McIntosh, 62, of Port Huron.

That summer he was one of eight Michigan Eagle Scouts appointed by then Gov. Fred W. Green to be guides at Mackinac Island's Fort Mackinac.

His companion for a month was a Scout from Grand Rapids, Gerald R. Ford, then 15, now President of the United States.

"I was always paired off with Jerry," recalled McIntosh, who was 16 in 1929. "He wasn't an introvert, but was on the quiet side. I was a lot like him."

McIntosh still has his scrapbook showing pictures of himself and Jerry together on the island.

He suspects their common love for football and other sports drew them together. Both were centers on their high school teams, Ford at Grand Rapids South and McIntosh at Port Huron St. Stephens.

"Jerry brought his football along with him that summer," McIntosh said. "We would practice whenever we had a chance. He was much better than I, but I wasn't bad."

McIntosh went on to play for Notre Dame and Ford for the University of Michigan.

Swimming in the Straits of Mackinac occupied a lot of the Eagle Scouts' leisure time that summer.

"The water was very cold," said McIntosh. "We used to call ourselves dolphins — we were in and out in a hurry."

But there was one activity Ford didn't join.

"I don't recall him having a date the whole time we were there," McIntosh said. "There were lots of girls from colleges working on the island. A couple of the guys were ladies' men, but Jerry wasn't like that."

McIntosh says he has good recollections of Ford from those days 45 years ago.

"He was a good, clean-minded considerate individual," he said. "I can say that from the heart. He was a leader, good looking and a real athlete."

One time the boys took a ferry to the Upper Peninsula, where they joined a friend of the McIntosh family, James Callahan Sr., aboard his tugboat.

"I still remember the beautiful trout we had for dinner that night," McIntosh says. "We ate in the ship's galley."

But August ended and the boys parted. McIntosh isn't quite sure why they never communicated again.

He tried once, when he went to a football game at Michigan.

"He had just gone home to Grand Rapids a few minutes before I got there," McIntosh said. "I never saw him again."

The impact of the summer with his buddy Jerry didn't really hit McIntosh until August when Ford moved into the White House.

"I still think of him as the individual I knew then," McIntosh said. "I'm quite sure he hasn't changed a lot."

"Politically, we're poles apart," he said. "More often than not, I'm a Democrat.

"If he were to walk in here right now, we probably wouldn't have much in common other than our experiences on Mackinac Island that summer."

McIntosh says he enjoys talking about those days.

"I jokingly tell my friends, 'I know the President of the United States, who was able to offer a job to one of the richest men in the world, Nelson Rockefeller.'"

Zero money

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I remember the exact moment I stopped borrowing money from my kids.

It was five years ago last March before a dinner party. During the cocktail hour, my five-year-old walked over to me, handed me a white rose and kissed me on either cheek. "You have until midnight to cough up the eighty cents," he said.

If there's anything I can't stand, it's being terrorized by a member of the Syndicate who can't even cross the street by himself.

I told myself then if I ever borrowed money from any of them I would have, to be destitute or desperate.

Do you know what being in town with no cash, no blank checks, no banks open, no husband near and a car in a pay garage is, friends? It's called destitute and desperate.

I knew if I could find my two sons running around the department store, I could probably float a loan. I snared one of them in the soda fountain line loading up a tray of food.

"Thank goodness I caught you before you checked out," I gasped. "I'm broke and I have to have money to get the car out of the garage."

"Did you check the pay phones?" he said. "Sometimes people forget when their dime is returned."

"I am not checking the pay phones. How much can you loan me?"

"After I guy this stuff. . .nothing."

I whipped the food off his tray and returned it. To the cashier with the raised eyebrows I said, "He just escaped from a Weight Watchers meeting. I'm making a citizen's arrest."

"What did you do that for?" he grumbled.

"I told you I needed the money. Now, where's your brother?"

We found him holding onto a number in front of the bakery counter. I snatched it out of his hand and returned it to the spike. "I need your money," I said, my eyes twitching nervously now.

"You're kidding," he said. "I read in Time Magazine where you make..."

"Never mind about Time Magazine. Do you have a quarter?"

"Are you telling me you don't have a penny in your purse?"

"I'm telling you all I've got is a rusty bobby pin, three cents and a breath mint with hair on it."

They exchanged knowing glances. I was frightened.

I have seen that look on a face only once before. It was a movie in which the son (played by Richard Widmark) took his mother's (played by Beulah Bondi) social security checks while she lived in an abandoned car and took in washing.

I know now I should have sold my wedding ring.

Lady Bird is living in present, as always

EDITOR'S NOTE — She spoke of many things, two years into widowhood. Of the past — to be savored with a few old friends — and of the present and future, the mainstream of Lady Bird Johnson's life.

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "Lots of little habits finally end," said the remarkable lady behind the desk. "I guess I've mellowed in."

Thus, she no longer turns down the corner of book pages to talk to her husband about, the way she did during their 38 years together and for months after he was gone.

Some things take longer.

"No matter how many dear friends and loving children one has," said Lady Bird Johnson, "there comes a time when they all go back to their lives, and there is nobody especially yours."

The observation was made as a matter of fact, not self-pity. The wife of the 36th president, who died two years ago Wednesday, has no time or inclination for that. She recoils from the word widow because "it seems like you're taking to yourself a gloomy condition."

The lady is not gloomy. Two years into a "new season" of her life, she lives very much in the present and recalls the past with joy. "Oh, wouldn't Lyndon have loved this? ... Can't you just hear him saying that? ..." And with the memories, her brown eyes pop like Roman candles and her arms dance in the air with the delight of a little girl racing toward her first pony.

At 62, Lady Bird Johnson, who shared the White House with one of the most visceral of presidents, remains a combination of eternal girl and strong, realistic woman, a compelling blend, someone said, of magnolias and pure unalloyed steel.

Gracious but firm, she declines to be drawn into comment on public issues.

What might Lyndon Johnson be trying to do with today's sagging economy? "I don't have the slightest idea," she laughs, "but I just know he'd be stirring."

Her thoughts about Watergate and the resignation of President Nixon? "As one who inhabited that house, I'll always have sympathy and understanding for the man in that job. But it would not be fitting for me to discuss it."

Down the hall from Mrs. Johnson's sunny office, in the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library at the University of Texas, is a precise replica of the Oval Office as it was when her husband occupied it. On tape, tourists hear him saying: "No president ever came into this office on a platform of doing what is wrong ... Every man (here) was dedicated to doing what he believed was in the best interest of his country ..."

Mrs. Johnson also declines to discuss the level of public cynicism left in the wake of Watergate, Vietnam and other divisive issues.

"My relation to the big things are just not part of my life any longer. I'm out of the mainstream. I live in a healthy-minded enclave of friendly, happy, hard-working people, and I just love it."

She did part the curtain on recent history long enough to deny, with some vehemence, suggestions that Lyndon Johnson left office and died four years later with a sense of rejection by his countrymen.

"He truly wanted to be president of all the people. He came into office wanting, more than anthing else, to unite the country ... (In 1968) he knew it was divided and I think he clearly felt he couldn't unite it. That was why he couldn't forsee many more 18-hour days in the job. But it was not rejection. Once out of office and with his responsibilities gone, he didn't think much about it."

In contrast to the "big things," Mrs. Johnson much prefers to discuss her current activities, a list of which requires a deep breath. The lady divides her time between various beautification projects, family business affairs—the LBJ ranch on the Pedernales and a radio station in Austin, overseeing the library, visiting her children and grand-children in Austin and Washington, working as a regent of the University of Texas, travel at home and abroad, answering 300 letters a week ("I seem to have an intimate relationship with so many people"), and, in the months of April and May, yielding to the urge to "just get into the car and go wherever the most wild flowers are and enjoy, enjoy."

The two environmental projects now "very much in the front" of her life, getting Mrs. Johnson's time and effort, not merely her name, are the riverfront park in Austin and the "LBJ Grove" in Washington, 15 acres along the Potomac which will become a memorial to her husband. She is a prodigious walker of both sites.

In Austin, she led a recent visitor on a brief tour of the Johnson library and then a mile walk on the bike and hike path of the new park along the Colorado River.

In the library, one noted the artifacts and symbols of Lyndon Baines Johnson's long career ... Boyhood pictures in Texas ... Certification as Senate Majority Leader in 1955, signed by a vice president named Nixon ... A small card containing the first public words of the 36th president on a dark day in November, 1973: " ... I know that the world shares the sorrow that Mrs. Kennedy and her family bear. I will do my best. That is all I can do ..."

Jeweled gifts, worth a fortune, from foreign potentates ... Exhibits reflecting the "Great Society" programs in education, health, poverty and civil rights ... Johnson's first memo on the attack in the Gulf of Tonkin ... His words carved in granite on a giant pylon: "Until justice is blind to color, until education is unaware of race, until opportunity is unconcerned with the color of men's skins, emancipation will be a proclamation but not a fact."

Q — Why were city park department personnel and equipment used to put in several trees on the grounds of the church at 2805 South Ohio recently? — A.M.M.

A — Park Superintendent Jack Couts explained the trees were planted on the city right-of-way next to the church as part of the city Environmental Quality Commission's tree-planting program. The commission recently purchased several trees and made them available free-of-charge to local groups and individuals requesting them.

"We have been helping the committee by planting the trees," Couts said. "We get a list of approved persons or groups from the committee and we go ahead and plant the trees on the right-of-ways. We only plant the trees where they tell us."

Q — In the Washington, Jefferson and St. Louis Streets area, buildings have been torn down but all the lumber has never been cleared away. The situation has gotten worse, not better. — J.Q.

A — City Building Inspector Woodrow Garrison told Hot Line he recently contacted the two owners of the sites in question and was assured that work would begin immediately on removing the lumber. Garrison indicated that work has since begun on the project and added that he periodically inspects the locations to insure that it is continuing.

Airplane crash cause of suit

NEW YORK (AP) — A Greek circus performer has filed a $25-million suit against Trans World Airlines and Boeing Co., charging negligence in an airliner crash over the Ionian Sea that killed all 88 aboard, including his son and daughter.

The jet plunged into the sea last Sept. 8 after a bomb exploded on board, according to findings of the National Transportation Safety Board.

The suit was filed Thursday in U.S. District Court on behalf of Theodore Pallas who lost his daughter, Helene, 15, and son, Stylianos, 7.

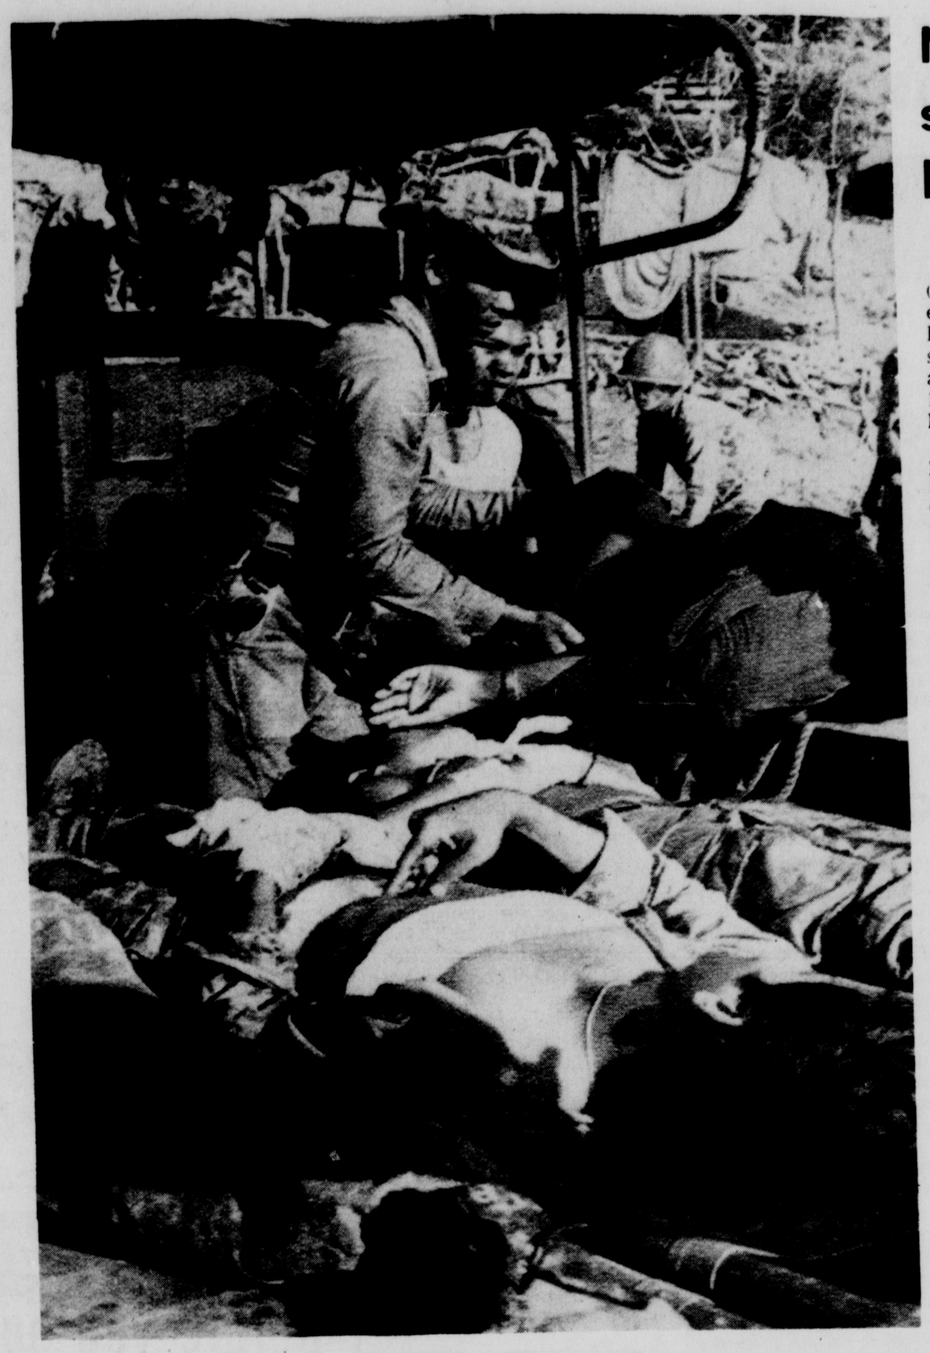

The suit contended that TWA knew that sabotage was "a clear and present danger on this flight which emanated from Israel," but that baggage was not inspected.

The flight was enroute from Athens and Rome when the bomb exploded.

The complaint also said the jet should have been strengthened structurally to survive an explosion. It noted that two weeks prior to the crash, a bomb aboard another plane had failed to explode but caused a fire.

Pallas' attorneys also asked the court to permit a class action suit which would seek $5 million for each of the 79 passengers on the plane.

Both TWA and Boeing have offices here.

Not really surprised by Cason

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Missouri political leaders were less than surprised Friday as they learned that state Sen. William J. Cason will announce his candidacy for the 1976 gubernatorial nomination Monday.

"He's been running for two years and now he's finally announcing it," Republican Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who is expected to seek re-election, said.

State Treasurer James I. Spainhower, also mentioned as a possible Democratic gubernatorial candidate, said Cason's candidacy "certainly comes as no surprise." He described the Senate president pro tem as "a very active candidate."

James C. Kirkpatrick, secretary of state and the largest Democratic vote getter in Missouri history, said the "ice has been broken" by Cason's announcement.

Though Cason is the first to announce for the Democratic nomination, Kirkpatrick also suggested Spainhower and State Auditor George Lehr as possible aspirants for the nomination. U.S. Rep. William Hungate of Troy, who has advised his constituents that he may not seek another term in Congress, has also been mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate.

"The prime factor is who can raise the money and who can build support," said Kirkpatrick.

Lehr reacted to Cason's candidacy by saying, "I wish him the very best."

Cason, a Clinton attorney and 14-year veteran of the Missouri Senate, issued a memo to the Kansas City news media Friday announcing plans for a 10 a.m. news conference there Monday to announce his candidacy.

"I have decided to become a candidate for governor of Missouri," Cason's memo said.

McCune is among dissident county assessors

Pettis County Assessor William McCune is among those members of the Missouri State Assessors Association opposing the 11 per cent general property assessment increase which became effective Dec. 31.

Prior to that date, Missouri law provided that real and tangible personal property, including real estate, was to be assessed for property tax purposes at its true value. However the State Tax Commission ruled that property need only be assessed at 30 per cent of its true market value. The new law stipulates that assessments must be set at 33½ per cent of true value.

Some assessors, McCune included, have indicated that they are not going to place the 11 per cent assessment increase on property in their respective counties. However, the State Tax Commission has the authority to make a blanket increase for any county that does not comply with the new 33 and one-third per cent law.

William McCune

McCune said he would eventually comply with the law, but only if forced to do so. He said if he flatly refused to go along, the task would eventually be passed onto the county clerk's office.

McCune agreed with a statement included in a letter from John C. Briscoe, secretary-treasurer of the Missouri State Assessors Association. County assessors and the association "feel that this is a most inappropriate time for a property tax increase," he wrote.

The current depression of the economy, including rising unemployment and the reduced purchasing power of the dollar, were cited by Briscoe. Also pointed out was the fact that the law was passed approximately two years ago, when the state's economy was in "considerably better condition."

McCune told The Democrat-Capital his office is currently using the 30 per cent valuation figure in computing assessments.

If the assessment rate is not reduced, McCune said, his office will refigure those valuations already computed for 1975 tax purposes. He said some definite word on the rate issue should be forthcoming by March, which would give his office time to recompute its figures for taxes this year.

The reappraisal of Pettis County property, which began the first part of 1974, will not be affected under the current law, McCune explained. The reappraisal will list all properties at their actual value at present and will not be put into use for tax purposes until after the project is completed. The contract calls for the reappraisal to be completed by next Jan. 1.

They talked and that's all

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — "They talked, that's what they did, they talked."

That's the way one official described the meeting Friday of the state Board of Education, one of three state panels caught in the middle of a challenge to Gov. Christopher S. Bond's authority to appoint all boards and commissions under state reorganization.

On the advice of the attorney general, who said the reorganization law abolished all boards and commissions and created new ones even though they may be exactly the same as before, Bond replaced three members of the education board whose terms had yet to expire.

He did the same with two members of the Highway Commission and two from the Conservation Commission, and the state Senate rejected all seven appointments on the grounds Bond could not "fire" a person whose term had not run out.

The Senate action has left both education and conservation without enough members to conduct business.

But even the three rejected education board members attended the Friday meeting of the eight-member panel, which also has one vacancy.

"I think I can contribute something to the board," said Nolan Hutcheson of McDonald County, "And I plan to continue to visit here until this political fight is resolved."

Arthur Mallory, education director, said he had asked the unconfirmed board members to attend the session to offer their advice on matters set for discussion, primarily priorities for the coming year.

"They've been in on the decision making since June," he explained. But an attempt will be made to put off for as long as possible issues that would require official board action.

Bond has said he does not plan to attempt to fill the seven posts until there is a final settlement to a court challenge on the matter filed in Cole County Circuit Court by "fired" Highway Commissioner Roger Linsin.

No date has been set for a hearing in that case, which is expected to ultimately be decided by the state Supreme Court, and state officials agree that it could be months before the question is resolved.

"It's a question of law, it's just that simple," said R. Jerome Williams, one of the four confirmed members of the board. "The courts should decide it and they will decide it."

Spainhower has his own program

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Contending the boost in the state's interest ceiling was not the cure-all for Missouri's construction decline, state treasurer James I. Spainhower has proposed a two-point program aimed at encouraging private industry to increase its efforts.

Spainhower, a member of the Missouri Housing Development Commission, urged approval during this session of the legislature for a measure under which the General Assembly and the governor would assume a moral obligation to back the revenue bonds issued by the commission.

At the same time, he called for passage of a constitutional amendment that would permit the commission to issue $200 million in general obligation bonds in addition to the same limit of revenue bonds currently allowed.

"More people are being forced into substandard housing than ever before in recent Missouri history," Spainhower told newsmen. "Not just families with very low incomes, but even families classified as having moderate incomes."

His proposals came as the federal government released figures showing that new housing starts in December dropped to the lowest level in eight years, and the 1974 total recorded the largest annual decline in 39 years.

Spainhower pointed out that while the national rate of residential housing construction was off 18.2 per cent, Missouri had fallen 27.3 per cent, costing the state about $89 million in new construction.

"Viewed socially, morally and economically, the housing industry in Missouri needs a shot in the arm," he said.

Approval of the moral obligation clause, already on the books in 31 other states, would not make the state legally responsible for payment of bonded indebtedness of the housing developmment commission, he said. But it does enable the state to cover defaulted bonds by the commission, and Spainhower said just that possibility enables the sale of bonds at lower interest rates.

While he said there may be constitutional objections to such a plan, Spainhower noted the proposed legislation calls for a Supreme Court test of its validity before it is utilized.

The commission has been unable to sell bonds in the past because the bids on them have called for interest payments that would have necessitated lending the proceeds to cover home loan mortgages at about the market interest rate, he said.

Ability to issue general obligation bonds, said Spainhower, would also enable the commission to sell bonds for about 2 per cent less interest than they currently can.

"The benefits of increased housing construction do not rest solely with the residents of such housing units, but rather the economic benefits are substantial to the statewide economy," the treasurer said.

QUEENSTOWN, Md. (AP) — President Ford will be among the guests at a meeting Sunday night of the Chowder and Marching Society, the White House says.

The society was formed by Republican House members 25 years ago.

DETROIT (AP) — A former member of the Supremes singing group who is now living on welfare says she's considering a return to the stage.

Florence Ballard, who got national attention earlier this week when stories revealed her plight, said Friday she had been offered a job by a New York music contractor. She last appeared on stage in 1967.

Of the offer, she said, "I was very surprised, very much so. I still think that I would like to perform again. There's something inside that seems like it has to come out, as if I just didn't finish what I started out doing, and I was singing."

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Lama Gyalwa Karmapa, head of a major branch of Tibetan Buddhism, has been received by Pope Paul VI. The two met Friday, and later the pontiff declared both he and the Lama are "pilgrims to the absolute and the eternal."

Leaning Tower slows pace

ROME (AP) — The Tower of Pisa, leaning further and further despite all efforts over the centuries to save it, slowed its rate of tip all by itself last year, an expert says.

The inclination of the 800-year-old landmark in the Tuscan town increased by just over nine-hundredths of an inch in 1974 compared with eighteen-hundredths of an inch in 1973, according to Giovanni Travaglini, head of a government commission studying the tower.

He gave no reason for the change of rate.

The 179-foot tower leans 17 feet from the perpendicular. How to stop it from crashing to the ground has stumped the Italian government and teams of engineers for years.

Travaglini's commission is reviewing ideas from five teams — four Italian and one Japanese — submitted in an contest sponsored by the government. The government set aside $5 million for saving the tower.

The five projects were among 14 submitted last year. All were ruled out as unworkable as submitted.

The five companies agreed to work with the commission to draw from each project significant parts to be merged into an acceptable solution, Travaglini said.

He said three basic approaches were suggested:

Steel poles riveting the tower into the ground for 160 feet.

—Injection of thousands of cement poles into the ground around the tower and strengthening the tower itself with cement belts inside.

—Hardening the ground with inorganic matter and other materials.

A new factor in the overall planning is a recommendation to build an aqueduct so that no more wells would have to be drilled in the area, Travaglini said.

The first step in preventing further leaning will be to build a solid structure around the tower to protect it and keep it in its present position, he said.

Slowing down?

The head of an Italian government commission studying the famous Leaning Tower of Pisa says the tower leaned only nine-hundredths of an inch last year, about half as much as it leaned in 1973. The commission is studying several proposals to keep the 800-year-old tower, which is 17 feet from the perpendicular, from falling.

Rising costs boost profits

NEW YORK (AP) — Amstar Corp., the nation's largest sugar refiner, has reported that rising prices for raw sugar have pushed its profits up 276 per cent in the last quarter of 1974 on a 172 per cent rise in sales.

Amstar credited nearly all of the earnings increase to its Spreckels division, which processes beet sugar.

For the quarter, sales were up to $537 million, compared with $197.8 million during the same period in 1973. Earnings totaled $17.38 million or $4.32 a common share for the quarter, compared with $4.62 million or $1.06 a share in the same period in 1973.

Amstar president Robert T. Quittmeyer warned Thursday that the decline in sugar prices which began in mid-November might not continue.

"The fundamental facts have not changed, although immediate pressures have lessened," he said, noting that world stocks of sugar are still at historically low levels relative to demand.

From January through November of last year, raw sugar prices rose more than five-fold, as retail prices soared from as low as 75 cents a five-pound bag to more than $3 in some areas.

For the six months through Dec. 31, Amstar posted earnings of $34.09 million or $8.58 a share, a 251 per cent rise over the $9.71 million or $2.26 a share profit recorded in the 1973 corresponding period.

Gas rate increase hearing date set

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The Missouri Public Service Commission will hear Missouri Utilities Co.'s request for an interim natural gas rate hike next Thursday.

The PSC will hear Missouri Utilities' request for an interim electric rate increase for its

The company wants a $149,000 hike in gas revenues in its southeast division and $360,000 hike for its central division. The utility is seeking a $1.4 million hike in electric revenues for its southeast division.

Man pleads guilty to reduced charge

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Roger S. Shuffield of Lonsdale, Ark., has been sentenced to five years to life in prison after pleading guilty to a reduced charge of second-degree murder in the death of a Michigan man.

Shuffield, 22, was accused of killing James F. Cooper, 21, Ferndale, Mich., last Oct. 10.

Suffield was to go on trial for first-degree murder Monday, but the charge was reduced by the Utah County Attorney's office, a court spokesman said.

Judge George E. Ballif sentenced Shuffield after he waived time for sentencing.

Spends time cleaning up his country

BAKER, Calif. (AP) — Baby Boy is too old to report the news, play the clarinet or guard a Navy installation like he used to do. So he spends his time cleaning up America.

"Nobody wants to hire a man my age," says 80-year Clemert "Baby Boy" Lee.

For two years now, Lee and his 72-year-old wife, Grace, have criss-crossed the West. Grace usually is behind in the couple's camper while Lee walks along the edge of the roadway spiking and collecting the aluminum cans tossed out by passing motorists.

"Ain't people nasty the way they throw junk all over the roadside," Lee commented in a recent roadside interview near this Mojave Desert town along Interstate 15.

"This is better than sittin' at home twiddlin' my thumbs," said the octogenarian as he spiked another beer can and plunked it in a cardboard box.

Lee says he makes "$15 to $20 a day stabbin' the empties" with his only tool, a stick.

"It don't do me any good to bend over. That's why I use the stick. And I'm not a gonna get hurt by a snake as long as I have the stick. I'd whomp any snake that comes near."

Baby Boy — not Clemert — is the old man's legal name. He said his mother held off naming him until his father could return from a European trip. So the doctor put Baby Boy on the birth certificate.

The parents decided on the name Clemert when the father returned. "Baby Boy" was forgotten until Lee presented his birth certificate to Army officials in World War I.

Baby Boy was "all they ever called me in the Army. It was tough to take at roll call," he said.

Miss Trader to retire from newspaper staff

Miss Frances Trader, for 19 years a member of the advertising department staff of The Democrat-Capital, retired Saturday.

A member of a pioneer Pettis County family, Miss Trader is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Charles B. Trader, her father being a noted Sedalia physician. Her uncle, the late George H. Trader, was president of The Sedalia Democrat Co. from 1938 to 1963.

Miss Trader, who lives at 219 West Seventh, was educated in Sedalia schools and majored in art at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo. She has received national recognition for several of her advertising layouts.

Reflecting on her career, Miss Trader said the most significant change during her years on the staff involved The Democrat-Capital's conversion to photocomposition and offset printing in 1967, which she said made her work a "breeze" compared to the former method of working with matrices and hot metal castings.

Miss Trader said she expects to spend a lot of time playing golf and contract bridge, her two favorite pastimes.

Court refuses to stay order

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The 8th U.S. Court of Appeals has refused to stay a federal court order preventing American Beef Packers, Inc., from spending any money that might affect a $50 million loan it received from General Electric Credit Corp.

Appellate judges M.C. Matthes and William H. Webster ruled Thursday in support of U.S. District Judge Richard E. Robinson's decision to halt American Beef's spending of the money, pending further hearings scheduled for Jan. 20.

Attorneys for American Beef had asked for a stay of Robinson's order after it was handed down Wednesday in Omaha, Neb.

The district court ruling reversed an earlier decision by Bankruptcy Judge David Crawford and came after General Electric filed a petition to enjoin American Beef from spending money owed to the credit corporation.

American Beef filed a Chapter 11 Bankruptcy petition in U.S. District Court last week, asking court protection while the firm liquidated its debts.

The packing firm has also hinted it might reopen beef slaughtering operations in Oakland, Iowa, at a cost of $650,000.

In making his ruling, Robinson had remarked that spending such sums before a hearing was held in bankruptcy court was like "locking the barn after the horse is stolen."

Air deaths highest since 1960 totals

WASHINGTON (AP) — More persons died in accidents involving U.S. airlines last year than in any year since 1960, the National Transportation Safety Board reports.

The 467 fatalities compared with the 227 lives lost in 1973, although the same number of accidents — nine — were involved in both years, the NTSB said Thursday. A total of 499 airline deaths occurred in 1960.

NTSB Chairman John H. Reed said flight cutbacks caused by energy problems, and the consequent higher passenger load on each plane, may have played a part in boosting the death toll.

Meanwhile, the Federal Aviation Administration confirmed that an independent panel created to recommend improvements in air safety to the FAA resigned last week after the parent Transportation Department cut back its authority.

FAA Administrator Alexander Butterfield had established the three-man committee after a House investigations subcommittee criticized the agency's leadership in air safety and made 29 recommendations.

Butterfield said the panel would look into the suggestions, but Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar then announced that the group could not make any recommendations on FAA policy, procedure or organization. Brinegar said he was creating his own panel to study the same areas.

Richard G. Shoup, a former Montana congressman who headed Butterfield's panel, said he and the others quit because Brinegar's restrictions "basically emasculated us."

Thursday's report by the NTSB said that nearly all of the 1974 fatalities occurred during five crashes.

A Pan American World Airways crash at Pago Pago, American Samoa, killed 96 persons; a Pan Am accident at Bali, Indonesia, killed 107; a Trans World Airlines crash off the coast of Greece killed 88; a TWA crash near Berryville, Va., caused 92 deaths; and an Eastern Airlines accident at Charlotte, N.C., was fatal to 71.

One of the fatal accidents involved not a crash but the strangulation of an infant by his seat belt aboard a Pan Am jetliner to Honolulu.

Satellite could be a boost for farmers

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Theoretically, at least, a new satellite called ERTS-B will pave the way further for super-accurate crop estimates which some day will enable world governments to say ahead of time whether people will have enough food or too little.

The satellite is a 2,100-pound device, 10 feet high and 5 feet in diameter, scheduled to be launched into orbit soon by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

When in orbit, ERTS-B will become ERTS-2, since the first has been circling earth since July 1972, snooping all sorts of ways with its sensors and passing the information back to more than 100 research teams.

Although ERTS-2 and its forerunner gather many different kinds of information, one of the new satellite's major functions will be to continue experiments for the surveys of crop acreages and other features of agricultural production which could lead to more reliable harvest forecasts.

The new satellite will carry out a Large Area Crop Inventory Experiment — called LACIE — aimed at determining whether orbiting sensors can improve the accuracy of major crop forecasts conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and whether worldwide use of such methods might be feasible.

Dr. William L. Ruble, deputy administrator for management in USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, says the new satellite and its predecessor will provide a continuing source of information about crop plantings, growth and harvest.

"To fulfill these responsibilities to farmers, consumers and to customers abroad, we must be able to estimate the volume of crops we can produce, the volume we are producing and volume needed by both foreign and domestic markets," Ruble told a NASA briefing audience last week.

The LACIE part of the program, Ruble said, will be an attempt to determine whether enough useful information can be obtained to justify the expense of using Earth Resources Satellite (ERTS) information — in conjunction with weather data — to predict the production of agricultural crops.

Previous work, including a joint U.S.-Canadian study of spring wheat areas and preliminary feedbacks from ERTS-1, led to the selection of U.S. wheat as the test crop for the new LACIE project.

"At the outset, LACIE will concentrate on wheat grown in North America," the space agency said. "If this activity proves successful and useful the first year, it will be extended in the second year to other regions and ultimately to other crops."

The LACIE project involves the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration of the Commerce Department as well as the Agriculture Department. One purpose of involving the Commerce agency is to relate weather information with crop data.

Ruble said wheat is one of the world's most important food crops, and that, since it is usually grown in large fields, it will be easier for the satellite information to be interpreted.

"If LACIE is successful in predicting wheat production in test areas in the U.S., it could provide an efficient and cost-effective crop assessment method which would be available to many users," Ruble said.

"If we do move into an operational system," he said, "the production estimates obtained will be available to all users, including the international community."

But Ruble added that it will take several years of evaluation and further tests before an operational system is developed.

Other USDA research project functions also will be performed by the new satellite, including attempts to:

—Measure water runoff in watersheds in the southern Great Plains;

—Assess soil, water and vegetation conditions in south Texas;

—Monitor forest and range resources in Georgia.

Recycling Arab oil money big problem facing Rockefeller bank

NEW YORK (AP) — David Rockefeller, chairman and chief executive of Chase Manhattan Bank, traveled extensively abroad last year to help fight a banking problem he says isn't over yet: recycling the Arab oil money.

The problem is that the great international banks have approached the limits of their ability to absorb petrodollars as short-term investments by the Arabs, Rockefeller says.

"In the longer run, there has to be a more lasting adjustment," he said. "What I mean is the consuming nations either have to cut their consumption, increase the other sources of energy, or find other exports which can offset oil prices."

The 59-year-old Rockefeller has held the top position at Chase since 1969 while Chase has slipped from second to third largest bank in the nation behind Bank America and Citibank. He said Chase remains enormously strong and profitable, despite problems with bad loan payments caused by a slowing economy this past year.

As a younger brother of the vice president of the United States, David Rockefeller says the inquiry into the family fortune which preceded Nelson Rockefeller's appointment was diagreeable at times for the rest of the family but said it cleared up "many misconceptions."

David Rockefeller, a graduate of Harvard and the University of Chicago, joined the bank in 1946. He made his comments in an interview with The Associated Press. Here are some of the questions and answers:

Q: Americans have read about petrodollars, the funds used to pay for higher-priced foreign oil, and the trouble the funds have caused the international monetary system. In a nutshell, what's happened?

A: Large flows of petrodollars enabled the commercial banking systems to expand their loans to a larger extent than they would have been able to otherwise. It was fine up to a point, but did result in an imbalance of capital to risk-asset ratios. Those ratios are strained to the point where most banks would not like to see them deteriorate further. The question is how much more the large international banks will be able to accept.

The big bulge has probably taken place, and just as back last spring it seemed clear to me that the commercial banking system could not go on much longer in the recycling, now it seems to me that a new problem is arising — which is that their capacity to absorb short-term petrodollar funds is reaching a limit.

Then what happens, the commercial banks start bidding for this money at lower rates, which pushes the rates down, and ultimately they will not bid at all.

At that point, and I don't suppose it'll all happen at once, the funds will have to find other outlets. I suppose that central banks and note issues of governments would be one avenue to pursue.

Another would certainly be direct investment or stock market investment and real estate. As the rate of return on short-term deposits goes down, the oil producing nations will seek more attractive longer-term investments.

The recycling process, first the commercial banking systems and more recently the governments, was only a stopgap. There comes a point where the country that is borrowing can no longer take care of servicing its debt. In the longer run there has to be a more lasting adjustment.

And what I mean by lasting adjustment is the sense the consuming nations either have to cut their consumption of oil or increase the other sources of energy or find other exports which can offset the oil imports.

Q: Are you optimistic nations can reach this lasting adjustment? A: Yes, but not without, to some extent, a basic shift to economic wealth and power from the consuming nations to the producing nations. The recycling process provides a breathing spell for the countries to make a more lasting adjustment.

Q: Is this an irreversible shift of wealth? A: Not necessarily, but so long as you have this relative shift in prices it will continue. It probably means there will be a larger share of ownership of industry in the hands of the oil producing nations, and that they will play a larger economic role in the world.

Q: Won't this lead to a breakdown of national sovereignty, as the producers own more foreign companies? A: I don't think it needs to, any more than U.S. investments around the world have broken down national sovereignty. My own feeling is that the world, whether we like it or not, has become irretrievably interdependent economically. Therefore I don't think we can have total and pure sovereignty. And I'm not sure it's all that desirable.

Q: Turning to the national economy, do you see a need for stimulation, and if so, wouldn't it increase inflationary pressures? A: Clearly, we have reached the point where consumer demand has fallen off sharply and needs some stimulation, and some kind of a tax cut stimulus would be a good thing, particularly if it could be made promptly and not perpetuated indefinitely.

Q: What about interest rates — how far down will they go?

A: I think the relatively easier monetary policy pursued now is fully justified, and I presume that will continue for a while longer, resulting in a decline of short-term interest rates.

Bell executive changes mind

By STEVEN M. EAMES
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. says an executive quoted as saying that alleged illegal political contributions were discussed at management meetings of the company in Texas now says he was in error when he made the statements.

The original claims of illegal political contributions were in the transcript of a taped conversation between dismissed Bell executive James Ashley and Bill Holman, former Austin manager for Bell now on "special assignment" for the company.

The conversation was taped by Ashley last October shortly before he was fired following an internal Bell probe. It is now part of the record in an antitrust suit against Bell filed by the defunct San Antonio Telephone Co.

According to the transcript Holman said in answer to questions from Ashley that W. L. Lindholm, now vice chairman of American Telephone and Telegraph and then Bell's top man in Texas, attended meetings at which illegal political contributions were discussed "fairly openly."

Bell's statement Friday, however, quoted Holman as saying: "In a conversation with Mr. James Ashley that was taped and has since been publicized I erroneously agreed with Mr. Ashley that W. L. Lindholm had knowledge of illegal political contributions."

Ashley said in answer to Bell's statement that the company was putting pressure on employes. He added that a deposition taken from Holman "will speak for itself when it is made public."

Ashley and the family of the late T. O. Gravitt, former Bell manager in Texas, have filed a $29 million libel and defamation suit against Bell in which they claim Gravitt was hounded to his death by the company and also allege that Bell engaged in unfair rate-setting practices in Texas.

Gravitt committed suicide last October during an internal probe by Bell in areas of his responsbility. He left notes in which he discussed alleged company irregularities including the existance of a slush political fund.

In other developments Friday:

—Bell filed a motion aimed at stopping Ashley and Gravitt's family and their attorneys from what Bell called "their scurrilous campaign in the news media." The motion said that Ashley and Gravitt's family had filed a motion seeking an injunction against Bell merely to obtain publicity. The plaintiffs had asked that Bell be enjoined from wiretapping the plaintiffs' phones.

—The plaintiffs then filed a counter-motion saying that Bell's contentions that the motion was filed for publicity are "diatribe and claptrap."

"There has been wiretapping, and there is wiretapping on the part of Southwestern Bell," the plaintiffs said, reiterating the claim in their motion.

$12 million in damages is awarded

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal court jury has awarded a total of $12 million in damages to 1,200 antiwar demonstrators arrested during a 1971 demonstration on the steps of the U.S. Capitol.

A lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union said the civil suit verdict Thursday, ordering the government to pay about $10,000 to each of the protesters arrested, marked a major legal victory.

Warren K. Kaplan, who tried the case for the ACLU, said it was the first jury verdict awarding damages in any of several lawsuits brought in the wake of arrests involving about 12,000 persons during the weeklong "Mayday" effort against the Vietnam war.

The outcome in U.S. District Court showed that the jury had found the mass arrests at the Capitol "a tragic blight on the administration of justice in this city and in this nation," Kaplan said.

Virtually all of the Mayday week arrests were later ruled illegal and only a few protesters were prosecuted and convicted.

Government attorneys said they had no comment on Thursday's verdict. It is expected that the government will appeal the award.

The six-member jury ordered the District of Columbia government and chiefs of the metropolitan and Capitol police forces to pay the damages for violation of the arrested persons' constitutional rights, false arrest, false imprisonment and malicious prosecution.

The suit grew out of a May 5, 1971, demonstration at the Capitol, two days after thousands of other protesters against the Vietnam war were arrested while trying to "shut down" Washington by blocking traffic and other tactics.

Boards go on Welfare

The Phoenix Nest
Edited by Martin Levin

By DERECK WILLIAMSON

As members of my family lug home sacks of bird seed and fill up the bird feeders, once again I ponder the social and moral implications of putting birds on welfare.

My family thinks I'm just a Bird Grouch, but that's not true. I like birds around during the summer, when they're all going about their own business, and gainfully employed. But I'm convinced that due to our annual winter feeding program, many birds are no longer flying South, preferring to stay here and be subsidized.

And even the most liberal of homeowners must feel a twinge of annoyance at the midwinter sight of fat belching bluejays, sneering and strutting past the picture window.

There appear to be no family seedwinners in my neck of the woods. Once our feeders are up, the birds stop searching for food, and just hang around waiting for handouts.

All winter long I'll see them leaning against the south side of the house, scratching their bellies, picking their teeth, and making rude remarks to passersby.

My neighbor has observed the same scene at his place. He says that idleness breeds crime, and claims that last winter a gang of welfare cardinals broke into his garage and stole two hubcaps.

That's a pretty far-right attitude, and I don't think I can go along with it. I'm not ready to believe that birds are involved in Organized Crime. Now and then a bird will flutter at our kitchen window, but I don't think he's trying to break in and steal stuff off the table. (He'd starve to death on our diet bread.) I think he is seeing his own reflection in the glass, and trying to chase away a newcomer from the handout line. "Beat it; we got this territory sewed up."

All of our birds start off eating a mixture of baby chick feed and sunflower seeds. But I know from experience that later this winter they'll get picky.

They will kick the chick feed out on the ground, searching for the more tasty sunflower morsels. Soon they will refuse the cheaper fare entirely.

Then it's only a matter of time before a Red-Eyed Wino Warbler will glare at me through the window, and point a wing contemptuously at the feed: "Hey! What kinda cheap joint ya runnin' here?"

I also know from experience that my wife and kids will appease the belligerent birds, despite my shouts of "Let 'em eat like the rest of us!"

Once again this winter the birds, having no energy, will have no energy crisis. There is little I can do about it, since I've been outvoted again. I have, however, lettered small signs to hang out on the feeders when nobody's looking. They say, "FLY SOUTH!"

New tax payment validation system for Pettis Countians

Pettis County Collector Lorraine Jackson said Friday a new system for validating personal property tax receipts, which must be presented when buying vehicle license plates, is now in effect due to a December order from the director of the state Department of Revenue.

It is now necessary to have the front side of the paid tax receipt stamped with the number of vehicles that taxes were paid on, Mrs. Jackson explained.

All personal taxes marked paid at the county collector's office Dec. 12 or later have this information already stamped in green on the white receipt and this copy must be taken to the Motor Vehicle Registration office each time a license is purchased during 1975, she said.

A green courtesy card was furnished from Nov. 1 through Dec. 11, Mrs. Jackson said, to those paying their 1974 personal property taxes. This green card will allow the taxpayer to buy one set of license plates. If taxes were paid on more than one vehicle, it will be necessary to have the collector's office stamp the correct number of vehicles on the green card, before plates can be purchased.

Mrs. Jackson said her office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each weekday and will have someone on hand to validate the green cards as required. She also stressed that taxpayers must now save their validated white personal tax receipts or green courtesy cards. Copies cannot be issued as in the past, she said.

In other news from her office, Mrs. Jackson said the 1975 merchant licenses are now ready. These licenses are required by all persons or companies who have merchandise for sale and must be purchased for the period of Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1975.

Newspaper publisher is critical of gift ruling

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A decision restricting the authority of the Madison Capital Times to bar its employes from accepting gifts from news sources "establishes a license to bribe newspaper personnel at all levels," the newspaper's publisher says.

Publisher Miles McMillin called the ruling Thursday by a National Labor Relations Board judge "incredible."

The judge, Nancy Sherman, said the newspaper must bargain with employes over the acceptance of free tickets, travel and other gifts from news sources.

Charles A. Perlik, president of The Newspaper Guild, which initiated the action, took issue with McMillin's reaction.

"Management's suggestion that the decision gives reporters the right to accept bribes is an outrageous defamation of our craft," he said.

The ruling, which applies only to The Capital Times, is subject to review by the five-member NLRB. The newspaper said it intends to appeal the ruling, either to the full NLRB or to a court.

The judge ruled the newspaper committed an unfair labor practice May 17 when it enacted a code of ethics for employes without first negotiating the matter with the guild's Local 64. She said the decision concerns only the newspaper's procedure for adopting the code, rather than its merits.

Ethics codes are not uncommon among news media, and the ruling could serve as a precedent in similar union-management disputes.

The Capital Times code prohibited employes from accepting free sports and theater tickets, free travel and other gifts. It required employes to report any activity which might be considered in conflict of interest.

The judge ordered the newspaper to rescind the code, negotiate with the guild about gifts and to reimburse employes for losses under the code.

Local 64 said in a statement the key issue was "the newsman's vital interest in shaping the rules which affect his credibility, his integrity and his effectiveness in the field."

Perlik, in Washington, declared, "Management's statement is obviously part of its continuing effort to obscure the principle at issue, which is not the right of reporters or anyone else to take bribes, but the obligation, under the law, of management to bargain with the union on the conditions under which the people the union represents will work."

But Robert P. Clark, president of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association and ethics committee chairman of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, objected to the ruling.

Said Clark: "Philosophically, Judge Sherman's decision makes no sense at all."

Clark, who is executive editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Lousiville Times, said a newspaper should "insist on the highest standards of journalistic ethics.

"This means avoiding all possible conflicts of interest, or even the appearance thereof. The public must be assured that writers and editors are beholden to no one unseen; that they are devoted only to the truth."

Food stamps would be taken away for some

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., has introduced legislation providing that college students whose parents are financially able to support them would be ineligible for food stamps.

Eagleton said the food stamp program "is probably the most equitable and effective federal program yet devised to meet the needs of low income citizens.

"Widespread abuse by those who are not truly needy can only serve to erode public suport for the program."

Under the Eagleton proposal, students would be ineligible for stamps if they are 18 years old, enrolled in college and properly claimed as a tax dependent by a parent whose own household is ineligible for food stamps.

Fortune just not there

DETROIT (AP) — Florence Ballard thought she was making enough money to last her a lifetime when she was cutting gold record hits with Diana Ross and the Supremes a few years ago. She was wrong.

Today she is 31, broke, has three children and lives on welfare in a flat on Detroit's West Side.

"I've been through so much, been so upset over so many things," she says. "Now I just let things happen. I hope things will turn out all right, but I don't know."

Florence Ballard, Mary Wilson and Diana Ross rose from Detroit's Brewster Housing Project in the early 60s to cut eight gold records in two years. Everything good happened at once.

Then suddenly she was out. Cindy Birdsong replaced her for an appearance at the Hollywood Bowl and she never sang with the Supremes again. Illness and quarrels were rumored.

She claims she received only a weekly allowance from the millions the Supremes were earning. She thought the rest was being invested or held for her. She has suits pending against both Motown Record Co. and her former attorney.

"Singing is the only thing I know how to do," she says. "It's the only thing I really know anything about."

But she hasn't performed since 1967. She spends most of her time these days just sitting in front of the televison in the flat she shares with her mother.

"I wouldn't waste all that talent if I had it," her mother says.

Nobody seems able to explain why she doesn't start singing again, although she has had her share of bad luck. Last month she broke her ankle and now she can take only a few steps at a time.

She seperated long ago from her husband, Tommy Chapman, a Motown employe.

"Going back has occurred to me. I think about it," she says. "But the only way to do it is to start singing and not just sit here thinking about it."

Her mother prods her and says Florence ought to do some commercials.

"Sure, if I lost 40 pounds," she says.

The gold's gone

Florence Ballard Chapman, once the toast of three continents as one of the original Supremes, is shown in her Detroit home Thursday. She says most of her neighbors don't know who she is and she is now broke. Chapman once lived in a substantial house, but the house was taken from her by foreclosure and she now lives with her mother and sister. Chapman and her husband are separated and she receives aid to dependent children for her three daughters. (AP Wirephoto)

Court date uncertain on turnpike

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—The Southeast Kansas Turnpike may be at least two months away from its day in court.

Dist. Court Judge E. Newton Vickers said a number of depositions on the cases had been taken only last week and that it will take court reporters some time to transcribe the materials so it can be reviewed by attorneys on both sides.

The lawsuit, filed by the Southeast Kansas Landowners Association, is challenging the validity of a 1974 law authorizing construction of turnpikes that would extend from near Belle Plain, Kan. to the extreme southeast corner of the state.

The Kansas Turnpike Authority, defendant in the case, strongly protested the continuance.

Judge Vickers said the turnpike authority was pushing the case just as fast as possible, but added, "I think that, according to the magnitude of this case, it is moving along rather well."

Elk hunters a different breed

By STEVE MOORE
Associated Press Writer

FICKLER'S CAMP, Mont. (AP) — "They just don't have a full tea bag, that's all.

"I wouldn't go down there for all the elk in Montana."

W.J. "Bud" Gelling was standing astraddle the Continental Divide some 8,500 feet high in the Rocky Mountains.

His "tea-bag" reference was to the Irish term defining the amount of mass between a person's ears and seemed appropriate.

Holding the reins of his horse in one hand and cupping a cigarette in the other, the 65-year-old carpenter from the mining city of Butte looked over the wind-swept slope of Caribou Mountain into the vast valley below, squinted at his companions who were thinking of going down there and said: "Go ahead, I'll find my way back to camp."

Some of the hunters had spotted a herd of elk the day before. Getting to them would be one thing. If someone got lucky and killed an elk, it would simply be the start of an excruciating ordeal — for man and horse.

The Butte carpenter is an elk hunter's elk hunter. He figures over a lifetime of hunting the Montana backcountry he has taken some 50 elk, not all of them shot within the rules.

"We never thought anything about seasons — just hunted year around. Didn't waste anything, though."

The trip had started at a cabin north of the Blackfoot River near Lincoln. From there, it was a 10-mile horseback ride into the Lincoln-Scapegoat Wilderness to Fickler's Camp, a special-use area set aside for a commercial hunting camp.

It took three hours to make the ride with the small pack string. The hunters found nothing short of wilderness luxury. The four-tent compound, 14 miles from the nearest telephone, came complete with a four-burner propane stove and oven.

Before dawn each morning the horses were saddled and provisions packed. Elk and deer, plus a healthy smattering of grizzly and black bear, abound in this country.

Some of the hunters said this year's hunt was the worst in years. The fall had been mild. There was little snow, even on the high ridges.

One big buck deer was taken early and a few cow elk were sighted.

The entire week of hunting yielded only two buck deer and finally one elk.

Griff Davidson, a 24-year-old rodeo rider and hunting guide, shot the elk in the massive valley that lay east of the Continental Divide. It was still open to hunting of elk and some of the hunters finally decided to make the desperation trip.

It was an eight-mile horseback ride just to the ridge where the hunt started. And taking the elk was only half the problem.

Pack horses were brought up the next day and it took 14 hours to get the meat back to camp.

Gelling was right. The hunters had only half a tea-bag at best "and maybe even less."

Good report given to furlough system

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Although the state corrections system's controversial furlough program has scored better than a 98 per cent success rate in its first two years, the major failures of the program have occurred in the last seven months.

"I don't have a scientific explanation for it," said George Camp, former corrections chief and now deputy director of the state Department of Social Services.

"I think it's a random thing," Camp added Friday. "I don't think we can point to any specific trend as such."

While only 10 inmates have failed to return from their furloughs out of the nearly 1,100 granted furloughs from November 1972, when the program began, all 10 have occurred since last June.

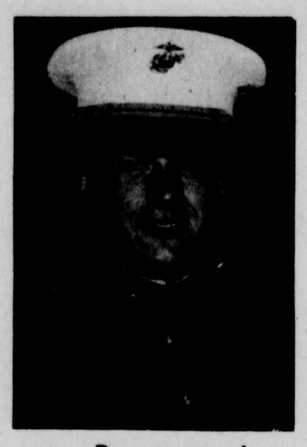

"The numbers (of furloughs) have more to do with it than anything else," Camp claimed. In 1973 there were no escapes on furloughs, but only about 100 were granted, he said. Last year, as the program was expanded, more than 950 inmates were released for short periods under the plan.

He praised his staff and the screening process that has been used since the program began, claiming that it is because of the selectivity of the screening process that the program has had such success.

Until Friday, the four inmates escaping during the last three months of 1974 were still at large, but one of them was captured. Camp claimed the fact that men manage to elude recapture for weeks or months will not cause an increase in furlough escapes.

"Most people realize they are going to be caught eventually," he said.

"Plans have been made to continue granting furloughs in Missouri because of the overwhelming success achieved in the program. Considering that 99 out of 100 inmates are eventually released from prison, it only stands to reason that this program of reintegrating inmates back into their home communities is an important part of rehabilitation."

Promoted

Douglas Kroeschen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kroeschen, Stover, recently was promoted to first lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He is stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif., and is assigned to the First Marine Division and serves as commanding officer of Company "C," Third Amphibian Tractor Battalion. He also was selected for agumentation into the Marine Corps, an honor received by only 25 per cent of those officers applying.

Skitch Henderson pays the price

NEW YORK (AP) — Skitch Henderson has been sentenced to six months in prison and fined $10,000 for claiming a $350,000 income tax deduction for an "almost worthless" music library he donated to a university.

The suave, goateed bandleader showed no emotion Friday as U.S. District Court Judge Edward Weinfeld stressed that the maximum fine was only secondary to the prison term.

"If those who attempt to violate the tax laws upon conviction receive the proverbial slap on the wrist and a fine they can well afford to pay, the deterrent force of a sentence upon the rest of the community is gone," the judge said.

Henderson, 56, was convicted last month of filing false income tax statements and backdating documents to take advantage of tax laws that had been changed. The government said it lost $52,000 in taxes as a result.

The music library consisted of 750 scores and arrangements collected during Henderson's stint as conductor on the "Tonight" show. He set a $350,000 value on them and donated the lot to the University of Wisconsin.

"He knew the gift was almost worthless," Weinfeld said at the sentencing.

During the nine-day trial, defense witnesses from the music world set values as high as $1,700 on some of the scores and arrangements in the collection.

The jury also found the entertainer-arranger guilty of seeking to have the date of the donation changed from February 1970 to February 1969, before a law banning such tax deducations took effect.

Henderson testified that in tax matters he simply followed the directions of his tax accountant. He had hired a new one in 1969.

Henderson had unsuccessfully sought dismissal of the income tax charges by comparing his case to an almost identical one involving papers of former President Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon's papers were found to be overvalued for tax purposes after they were donated to the National Archives. His tax educations were disallowed, but he was not prosecuted.

Henderson could have gotten six years in prison.

Quotable Women

By The Associated Press

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"I assume they elected me because I'm competent and professional. My sex and my race are accidents of birth. I take them for granted." Margaret Bush Wilson, elected the first black woman board chairman of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in New York.

Holding budget line next to impossible

An important part of President Ford's complex economic package is a proposal to hold all government programs tied to the consumer price index to 5 per cent increases. This, coupled with Ford's recommendation that to new federal spending programs be approved this year, is aimed at holding down the projected budget deficit as much as possible.

It will need it. As things now stand, the red ink in the current federal budget will total $30 billion; next year it is expected to reach $45 billion! Treasury Secretary William Simon aptly called both prospects "horrifying," which indeed they are. They will virtually guarantee a new start up of inflationary fires, just as they were beginning to simmer down.

As for one of the most important areas of fixed federal spending — Social Security — Ford's call or modest increases is likely to fall on deaf ears in the new Congress. The Social Security Advisory Council (SSAC), meeting this weekend in Washington, is expected to recommend sharply higher payroll taxes.

The tax rate for both employers and employes will probably be raised, but the biggest boost will come from the SSAC's expected proposal that the taxable Social Security wage base be boosted from the present $14,100 to a staggering $24,000. It went up Jan. 1 of this year from $13,200.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that there may be no way to get off the back of the Social Security tiger, which will demand higher and higher taxes to stay solvent. Current actuarial predictions are that the system could be running in the red in two years, due to inflation and the declining birth rate, which has cut tax revenue coming into the system.

Social Security, other fixed expenses and essential programs have created a federal budget that has precious little room for discretionary spending, at least from the standpoint of practical politics. This fact makes it all the more difficult for the nation to come to grips with its economic problems.

Kicking the TV football habit

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Dalinsky called me up last Monday night and said, "Could you come over to the house right away?"

The urgency in her voice scared me and I rushed over. "What's the matter?" I asked.

Buchwald

"It's Harry. He's in the den watching a football game."

"What's wrong with that?"

"There's no football on. He won't believe the season is over."

I whistled. I walked into the den and there was Dalinsky sitting on the edge of his chair shouting, "Come on Kilmer. Go for a pass!"

"Harry," I said, "that isn't a football game you're watching. It's a movie, 'Captain Blood,' with Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland."

"Don't interrupt me," he snarled. "If you want to watch the game, sit down. Otherwise go in the other room and talk to Marion."

"Harry, buddy, the season is over. There is no more football until the summer."

He looked at me as if I had struck him. "No more football? But it's only January."

"Look at the set yourself. Errol Flynn is sticking a sword in that guy's gizzard."

Harry looked at the screen. "I thought it was Howard Cosell. You mean there are no more games until the summer?"

"I'm afraid so, Harry. I hate to be the person who breaks it to you."

"But there's ALWAYS football on television," Dalinsky protested. "What about the college games?"

"They're over, too."

"And the World Football League?"

I shook my head. "They're going bankrupt. Harry, you have to face reality. Life isn't one continuous football game."

"I don't believe you," he said. "I'm sitting here until the game comes on."

Mrs. Dalinsky whispered to me, "I told you. He won't leave the den. He keeps switching channels. Two hours ago he thought Perry Mason was Joe Namath and he kept yelling, 'Suit up, Joe, suit up.' "

I sat in a chair. "Harry, you know what the networks do when they have no football to show you. They give you tennis and golf and basketball and hockey and bowling. They try to make it up to you. But you have to co-operate. You can't pretend you're watching football when in fact it's another sport. It is unfair to them."

"Look, O. J. Simpson is going off tackle," Dalinsky said.

"That isn't O. J. Simpson. That's Olivia de Havilland and she's not going off tackle. She's getting in a whaleboat to escape from J. Carrol Naish."

"Well, why doesn't Frank Gifford say so?" Dalinsky demanded.

I went in the other room and spoke to Marion.

"It's a severe case of pigskin trauma. He's been on TV football so long he can't kick the habit."

Marion started to cry. "What can I do?"

"You can either go along with it, or we can give him electric shock."

"Electric shock!"

"It's painless. It makes him forget he ever saw a football game. The only trouble is there are side effects. He'll also forget the rules."

"I'd rather let him work it out by himself," she said.

"Okay," I agreed. We went back in the room. Dalinsky was watching Rhoda.

"Who's winning?" I asked him.

"Oakland," he said. "But I think the Jets are going to go for a field goal."

Mafia runs traffic in hot securities

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Confidential computer data, furnished by some of Wall Street's most prestigious brokers, show an alarming increase last year in stolen, missing and bogus securities.

Wall Street may seem remote to ordinary Americans, but they will wind up paying through the nose. For the massive losses will have to be made up in higher prices, bank rates, brokerage fees and insurance premiums.

The leap in losses was detected by the computers of the Securities Validation Corporation, whose data banks were fed the secret figures from 42 brokerage houses, including Merrill Lynch, Bache & Co., and others.

The losses reported by these firms, according to the computer data, shot up from $75 million in 1973 to $218 million in 1974.

On the basis of the computer figures, it is estimated that the total losses for all brokerage houses surpassed $2 billion at the end of 1974. Adding the losses of banks, transfer agents and other securities handlers, the grand total could reach a staggering $20 billion.

What is even more ominous is that the Mafia, run by a new generation of sophisticated gangsters, is believed to be behind the multibillion-dollar traffic in hot securities.

To their credit, the 42 firms worked with Securities Validation to block the misuse of fraudulent and stolen securities. But the data firm, unfortunately, is going out of business.

The man who collected the computerized data, Securities Validation's Henry duPont, told us that the banks could have kept his service going if they had subscribed. But he charged that the bankers often prefer to be oblivous to phony or stolen bonds which they have accepted as security.

"I don't think the banks want to know," he said. Because of their head-in-the-sand attitude, he added, the thefts and frauds go on unabated.

The federal government has a cumbersome file of missing and bogus securities, but duPont's computerized data made it easier to track the hot securities. Now that his computers have been shut down, he said, "the Mafia will have a field day." He is preparing a report on the astonishing stock losses, meanwhile, for the Senate Investigations sub-committee.

BLONDES AND BEARS: Some fascinating memos, which were never supposed to be read outside the National Park Service, describe the headaches of filming a TV series in Yosemite National Park.

In earlier columns, we told how the giant conglomerate, Music Corporation of America, had embarked on a program to turn Yosemite into a Disneyland-style entertainment attraction.

We also reported that a MCA subsidiary, Universal Studios, had invested about $5 million to film a TV series at Yosemite to help promote the park.

Park officials hoped happily that the TV show would gain public acclaim for the Park Service. But the confidential memos from Yosemite warned that the series "will not convey anything remotely close to a reasonable portrayal of a ranger's life in a national park."

The official assigned by the Park Service as a technical adviser to the TV production, Bill Everhart, cited one proposed episode, which would have featured "a gorgeous blonde sunbather, nude (doing) her thing atop a Winnebago."

Another episode had a bear, known as Cruncher, outwitting the managers. Or as the dismayed Everhart put it in a message to Washington: "The great Cruncher has bested the rangers once again."

Portraying rangers on national television as affable fellows who can't cope with nude blondes and marauding bears wasn't the sort of publicity that the Park Service had hoped for.

"The rangers come out of the first episode," wrote Everhart gloomily, "batting about .500." They were sufficiently intrepid, he felt, when it came to "rescuing climbers from sheer rock faces or from beneath the Merced River."

But, he complained, "on matters mental — projecting an adult understanding of people, girls in particular, or being able to figure out a bear — they bat a flat zero."

Everhart also criticized the TV writers for using the spectacular Yosemite scenery as a setting for "retelling the same old stuff."

"About the only saving feature," he commented, "is that it's all so implausible that people will hardly believe this is what happens in a park."

NBC apparently agreed with Everhart's assessment of the TV series, which was entitled "Sierra." After only 11 shows, the series was canceled.

Footnote: What really horrified Everhart was a proposed episode, in which the chief ranger would tell off a U.S. senator. Unlike movie rangers, real rangers get their appropriations from the U.S. Senate. Here's how Everhart described the scene for his bosses in Washington:

"A vain Senator, with press coverage, has decided his two boys will prove to the world they are chips off the old block by climbing a granite spire in the park." The boys get into trouble, and the chief ranger lectures the Senator. Concludes the summary: "A much humbler Senator and probably better father greets" his sons after the rescue.

Winter cleaning

I look around at my dirty house
And I don't know what to do first.
Upstairs and downstairs needs scrub brush and mop
I don't know which looks the worst:
There are scraps of material from curtains I made
With ravelings all over the floor
And I'm trying to figure a curtain out
To put at my kitchen door,
I planned pink trim for the curtains
Since my kitchen is white and pink
But I had yellow trim and used it
I'll change the pink accent to yellow I think;
My windows are hard to get curtains for
So I always finally decide
To make them — one window is regular size
The other is short and wide;
And now that I have them almost made
I find that the yellow trim
Looks nice enough, but the problem is
It is running a little bit slim,
So I can't put on as much trim as I wanted to
But I'll make out for now, I guess,
Since they are clean and straight I won't worry
I'll just made do with a little bit less;
The kitchen woodwork is dirty
And I've started to paint it, too,
I need to paint the bathroom, woodwork
I really have so much to do;
I can't seem to get Christmas stuff put away
If I worked at it steady I know
I would have it done by this time
But there is always some place to go,
Or there is something else comes up
And I stop and do it — but then
I seem to lose track of what I have done
When I get back to it again,
I've been stuffing trash bags and putting away
Though it seems I'm not far along
Still I seem to have more room in closets and drawers
So I feel that maybe I'm wrong,
It's a strange time of year for housecleaning now
This I know, but I guess it won't hurt,
You see when it comes to spring housecleaning time
I want to get out and dig in the dirt,
So I'll dig in the dirt inside right now
Get rid of the worst of the grime
And when the flowers need attention when spring comes
Then I can give them a little more time.

New, young Congress is sworn in

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — This is the week Washington comes alive again. The 94th Congress with its new and old members has settled into its offices (some temporarily), the new members' wives have found a dwelling place, probably in the Virginia and Maryland suburbs.

As the 93rd Congress was marked by Watergate, the 94th will be measured by how it handles the serious problems of energy and economy. The 75 new members have been busy interviewing the old timers until some of the oldsters wearied of the inquisitiveness of the youngsters. A reporter remarked that it was "like the seniors being hazed by the freshmen." Many of the new members are already thinking about their re-election, so they have carefully picked the committees where they can best serve their constituents.

The two youngest members are Thomas Downy, 25, D-N.Y., who admits he started to run for Congress when he was 6 years old but it took him 19 years to get here, and David Emergy, 26, R-Me., who also started early. Both admit they are a little awed by their victories, and agreed it was their strenuous door-to-door campaigning which made them victors, although Downy said Watergate was a factor for him. They "wear their youth like badges" according to one story, but they are likable chaps and eager to listen.

There are six new congresswomen in the House, making a total of 18. The new women vary in age from 44 to 63. Four are Democrats. All are concerned about tax reform, oil depletion, the equal rights amendment, abortion, child care, and of course the market place.

The new members never heard the voice of "Fishbait" Miller when he announced, "Mr. Speakah, the President of the United States." The new voice is that of James Malloy, the new doorkeeper.

Tuesday was their big day when they were officially seated. The session was short so they could return to their respective offices and hold open house for their constituents. Many came from their home states, and friends living in D.C. stopped by to wish their senators and representatives good luck.

New members as well as old got spruced up for the State of the Union speech as President Gerald R. Ford was announced and escorted down the historic aisle. He wore his customary smile as he acknowledged the addressed "Mr. Speaker" Carl Albert, the senators, the representatives, the Cabinet, the diplomatic corps, his family and others in the galleries.

Smith-Cotton loses a pair

Bulletin

INDEPENDENCE — The Sedalia Smith-Cotton Tigers suffered their second loss in as many nights Saturday, losing to Truman High School here, 74-71.

A balanced Truman attack offset a 29-point performance by Smith-Cotton's junior forward Pete Fiene.

Truman led all the way: 23 to 13 at the end of the first quarter, 42 to 35 at half and 54 to 53 at the end of the third quarter.

Other scorers for Smith-Cotton were: Pat Fiene 9, Ray Newbill 8, Greg Koetting 2, Skip McGuire 6, Tom Buckner 13 and Marvin Spruell 4.

Steve Kahn paced Truman with 19. Four other players also scored in double figures for the home team.

In the junior varsity game, Truman won 64-55. Bob Paul had 21 points for Smith-Cotton.

JEFFERSON CITY — An early 11-point Smith-Cotton lead withered by the final moments of the second quarter here Friday night against the Jefferson City Jays, who remained undefeated in Central Missouri Conference action with a 65-55 win over the Tigers.

The Tigers broke up a 6-6 deadlock scoring 12 of the next 13 points in the first period to build an 18-7 lead. S-C led 18-9 at the end of the period.

But foul trouble forced S-C coach David Porter to shuffle his lineup. By the midway point of the second quarter, the Fiene twins, Pat and Pete, the Tigers' starting front line, along with first-string center Greg Koetting, were all on the bench with three fouls each.

Later in the period, reserve center Skip McGuire picked up his fourth foul.

Gary Gonder pulled the Jays, now 2-0 in CMC play, even at 25-all with 1:20 to go in the half. But senior S-C guard Tom Buckner gave the Tigers a 27-25 halftime lead on a pair of charity shots before the buzzer ended play.

Jim Blochberger pulled the Jays into the lead, 31-29 with 6:24 left in the third period, just after Koetting was whistled for his fourth foul.

Things got progressively worse. Baskets by Andy Arnold, Mike Merrick and Brad Bledsoe pulled the Jays in front by eight. Sandwiched between the buckets by Merrick and Arnold was Pete Fiene's fourth foul.

Fouls, which cost the Tigers Koetting, Pete Fiene and McGuire before the game had run its course, played a big part in the game.

The Jays outscored Smith-Cotton by only one field goal, hitting 24 of 54. The Tigers netted 22 of 54.

But from the free throw line, Jefferson City hit on 19 of 30 attempts, including 12 of 15 in the final quarter.

S-C went to the line only 22 times, converting on half of them.

Officials Duane Miles, Rolla, and Ken Paschel, Linn, called 26 fouls on the Tigers, seven more than Jefferson City.

The Jays created a swing of 22 points from the Tigers' first-period, 11-point lead on two free throws by Blochberger with 7:01 to go in the game. His two charity tosses gave the Jays a 47-36 lead.

But the Tigers came back, pulling within four points, 55-51, on a basket by Pat Fiene with 2:19 showing. The momentum switched back to Jefferson City in the final two minutes of play, allowing the Jays to post their 10th win against only four losses on the year.

Smith-Cotton now stands at 1-2 in league play and 4-7 overall.

Jefferson City made a sweep of the night's activity with a 64-58 win over the Tigers in the junior varsity game.

In other Central Missouri Conference action, Columbia Hickman remained undefeated in league play with an 84-78 victory in Hannibal.

Scoring

Jefferson City (65) — Brad Bledsoe 9, Mike Merrick 10, Jeff Sanders 13, Jim Blochberger 7, Andy Arnold 12, Chris Mallory 4, Brent Ward 2, Steve Jambor 2, Gary Gonder 6.

Sedalia Smith-Cotton (55) — Tom Buckner 11, Harry Browder 3, Greg Koetting 4, Pat Fiene 18, Pete Fiene 12, Marvin Spruell 3, Ray Newbill 4.

Walton out to jump contract?

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walton, the 6-foot-11 Portland Trail Blazers rookie, missed 18 National Basketball Association games in a complex manuever to break his reported $2 million contract, the New York Times reported in its Sunday edition.

Walton played 14 minutes Thursday night against the Cleveland Cavaliers, his first game since Nov. 23. He said he was suffering from a painful bone spur above his left ankle.

The Times said that during his absence from the team, Walton severed a long-standing friendship with Sam Gilbert, a friend and advisor to UCLA athletes who helped Walton negotiate his contract, and retained Charles Garry of San Francisco to represent him.

Gilbert, a millionaire who is in the construction business, told The Times the only reason Walton returned to the Trail Blazers "is that he couldn't get out of his contract.

"He tried in many ways and failed. Knowing his hostility to Portland, the players, the coach and the management, he will try and leave again. I believe he still wants to be traded." Gilbert was quoted as saying.

An All-American at UCLA, Walton signed with the Trail Blazers after they picked him in the first round of the NBA draft.

Garry told The Times "there's no way he can get out of the contract. It's ironclad."

Virdon to get another award

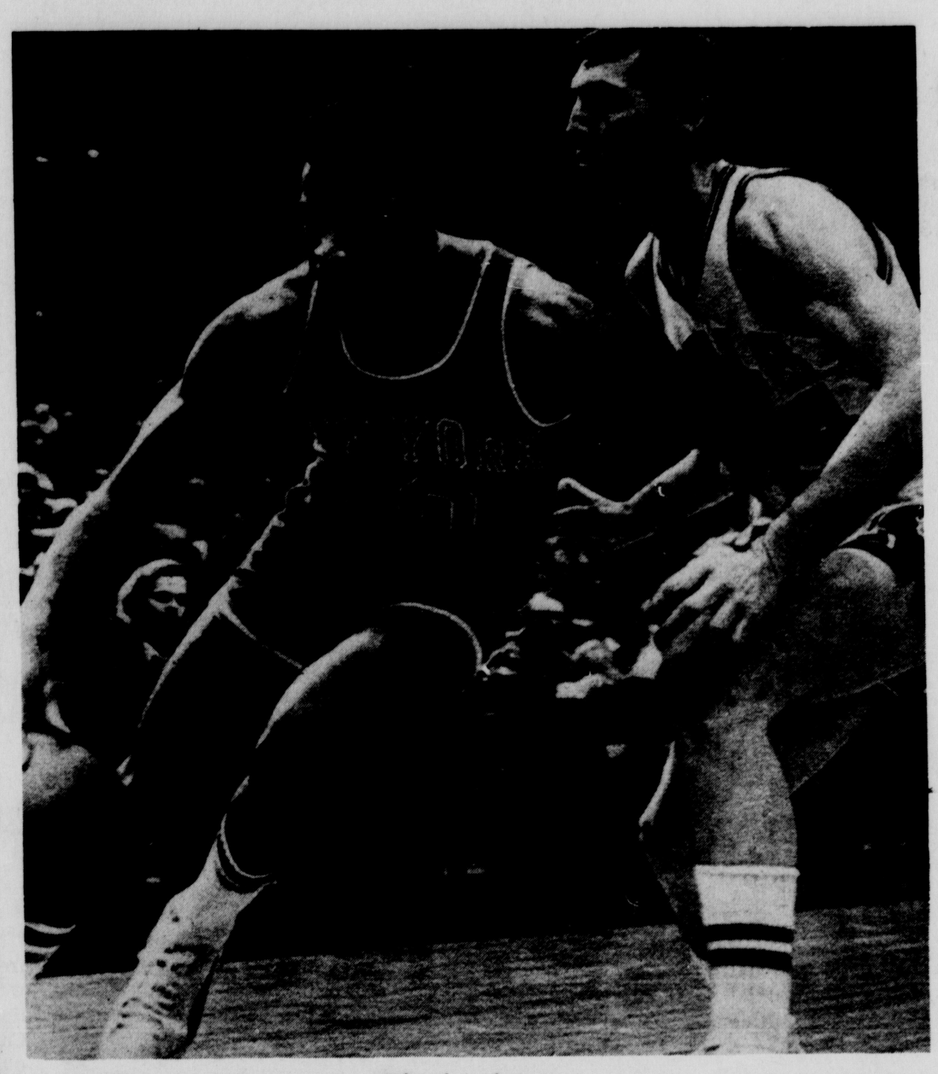

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bill Virdon may have been only the second choice of the New York Yankees, but the Kansas City Baseball Awards Dinner is going to honor him on Jan. 26 as manager-of-the-year.

The Yankees put Virdon in charge last season when they could not get Charlie Finley to release Dick Williams from his contract at Oakland. Virdon responded by leading a Yankee charge that kept the New Yorkers in contention until the next to last game of the season and left them only two games behind Baltimore at the end.

Virdon lives at Springfield, Mo.

Kansas downs Missouri

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Kansas successfully opened defense of its Big Eight basketball title here Saturday night with a 91-86 victory over a Missouri team that refused to fold until the final seconds.

The Tigers were on the short end of a 70-50 count with 13 minutes to go, then they registered 15 unanswered points and pulled to within five with 9:30 left. They managed to tie at 72-all and 74-all before Kansas used free throws to pull it out in the final six minutes. Missouri was sparked in its rally by Willie Smith, who scored a game-high 28 points—15 of them while the Tigers were making their run at the Jayhawks.

Rick Suttle was high for Kansas with 27 and three other Jayhawks scored in double figures, topped by Norm Cooks's 19. Kim Anderson was second high for Missouri with 20.

Missouri stayed in the game the first half by dominating the backboards against the taller Jayhawks, then used a ballhawking, pressure defense to pose a serious threat after intermission.

The outcome left both teams with 9-4 records.

Okla.-Colo.

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—The Oklahoma Sooners, after losing four of their last six games, blew Big Eight foe Colorado out of the fieldhouse here Saturday night and walked away with a 113-62 victory in their league opener.

Colorado led once, 1-0, but had to watch as the Sooners spurted to a 6-1 lead and then continue to pull away to a 58-32 halftime margin. During one stretch late in the half, the Sooners hit 18 out of 22 field-goals.

With about six minutes left in the first half, Sooner coach Joe Ramsey started going to his bench, sitting All-American center Alvan Adams down first.

Adams, averaging 26.5 points and 13.5 rebounds per game, had 12 points and four rebounds at that point. He started the second half before retiring for good with 9:49 left. He had 21 points and 13 rebounds.

OU sophomore forward Rick McNeil came off the bench to pump in 24 points and lead both teams in scoring.

Oklahoma had almost as many rebounds as the Buffaloes had points, outrebounding Colorado, 60-27.

Alvan Berry and Tony Lawrence led the Buffaloes in scoring with 10 each while Lawrence was Colorado's leading rebounder with seven.

Oklahoma is now 8-5 on the season while Colorado falls to 3-10.

College action

Drake scares Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Third-ranked Louisville, given a reprieve when Drake's Ken Harris missed a shot at the end of regulation, went on to defeat the Bulldogs 55-53 Saturday night in overtime in Missouri Valley Conference basketball action.

The victory was Louisville's 12th straight, against no losses.

Drake tied the game 45-45 on Larry Haralson's three-point play with 1:03 left in regulation. Haralson led the Bulldogs with 19 points.

The two teams exchanged baskets at the start of the extra period and then Louisville scored four straight to take a 51-47 lead.

Wesley Cox, who led Louisville with 17 points, hit two free throws with nine seconds left.

Drake's Ron Caldwell went in for a layup at the gun.

Drake, now 7-7, trailed 17-10 with 14 minutes left in the first half, then switched from a man-to-man to a zone defense.

Louisville responded by going to its four-corner offense—a semi-stall—and scored just eight more points by the end of the half.

Meanwhile, Drake, with Haralson scoring six points in four minutes, trailed 25-23 at the half.

The Bulldogs went ahead 42-40 with 4:21 in the regulation, and then took the ball back after a Louisville turnover. Then Louisville's Allen Murphy stole the ball and Cox sank a jump shot to tie it up.

Kansas State-Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska ran off 10 points in a row midway in the second half to pull away from Kansas State for a 74-61 victory in the opening Big Eight Conference basketball game for both teams.

Nebraska, idle since its third place 80-63 loss to the Wildcats in the Big Eight holiday tourney, played trade-off until the second half spurt that gave the Huskers a 61-47 lead in the regionally televised game.

Four Nebraska players were in double figures including 6-7 sophomore reserve center Rickey Harris who scored most of his 11 points in the second period, five of six from the field.

Both teams opened cold with the score 2-2 after three minutes. The lead changed frequently in the first half with the Huskers ahead 30 28 at halftime.

Nebraska played a tough man-to-man defense that hampered Kansas State. Guards Chuckie Williams and Mike Evans led the Wildcat offense with 20 and 14 points, respectively.

Nebraska's other top scorers were Jerry Fort with 20, Bob Siegel 16 and Larry Cox 13. Siegel also had 15 rebounds, 13 in the first half.

Nebraska had three more field goals than the Wildcats and hit 14 of 22 from the line while Kansas State had 7 of 9. Both teams have records of 8-5.

MU-Rolla-CMSU

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Bob Stanley did it all for Missouri-Rolla Saturday night as the Miners whipped Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball rival Central Missouri 86 to 79.

Stanley his 66 per cent from the field to amass a game-leading 27 points and 18 rebounds.

Rick Gosnell was high for Central with 24 points.

Rolla hit about 56 per cent from the field, to about 44 per cent for Central.

Stanford finally tops UCLA

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — After nine years of basketball frustration, Stanford handed its screaming fans an epic upset by humbling UCLA for the first time in 18 meetings...and according to Bruins' Coach John Wooden, the result was not wholly unexpected.

A sellout crowd of 7,900 boosters watched as their Cardinals marched to a 64-60 victory over the surprisingly outclassed Bruins Friday night. Wooden, whose players were unbeaten in 12 previous games this season, pleaded guilty to most charges.

"I knew Stanford was a good club," he acknowledged. "They'd played most of their games on the road and they'd lost several by only a point or two. Give them credit. They were inspired and they played very well."

Stanford Coach Howie Dallmar agreed. "We defensed them pretty well, I'd like to think," he said. "But the key to UCLA is the boards. They keep thinking they can get that second or third shot. And if they do, you're dead."

This time, it didn't happen.

Except for a solo five-minute second-half spurt when the Bruins closed a 15-point deficit to four, the losers were outshot, out-rebounded and out-defensed.

Stanford's 7-foot center, Rich Kelley, overwhelmed one Bruin defender after another, scoring 22 points, 16 in the first half. When he started to miss, Ed Schweitzer took over, popping medium range jumpers like clockwork and also finishing with 22.

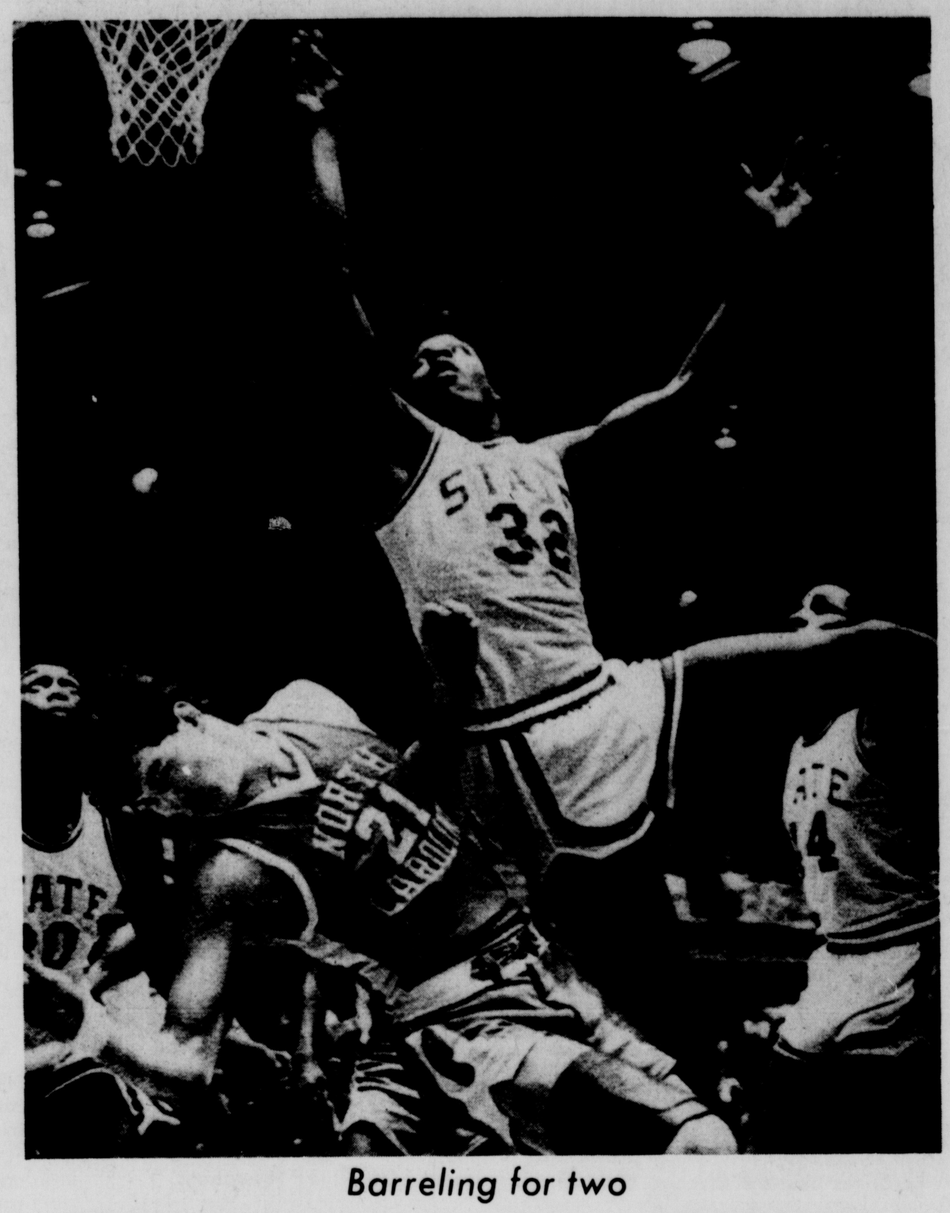

Time after time, Kelley, a moustachioed senior, worked underneath for short jumpers or bank shots.

"Over the years, I'd noticed that the UCLA postman—actually, it was always Bill Walton—never tried to deny you the ball," Kelly said. "Walton was so talented it didn't matter. But now it does. These guys couldn't stay with a 7-footer who has good moves.

"UCLA's fundamentals of post defense are pretty weak."

The second-ranked Bruins' performance was as flat as a pool table. They made only 10 of 36 shots in the first half, a dismal 27.8 per cent. And they failed to do anything to Kelley except foul him under the basket.

Wooden, was a graceful, if unhappy, coach, figuring it was "extremely poor shooting" that cost the game.

Smith, Stones say roof's the limit

By The Associated Press

Two men who have scaled the highest heights in their respective track events, have now gone even higher, setting new indoor standards for the high jump and pole vault.

And according to the indoor record breakers, Steve Smith and Dwight Stones, the roof's the limit.

"From now on I'll just go after the record one centimeter at a time," Stones said Friday night after becoming the first man in history to reach the 7-foot-5 high-jump barrier indoors.

Stones, of Long Beach State College, leaped past Valery Brumel's 14-year-old record of 7-4½ with his jump at the Idaho State University Meet of Champions.

"I knew I could break the world record tonight," Stones yelled exuberantly after his record-smashing leap. "I just knew I could go 7 feet 7."

Stones, holder of the world's outdoor record of 7-6, broke the American and world record on his second try. He said before the meet that was his goal.

"He came up to me before the meet and said he was shooting for the record," said meet director Bob Beeten. "On his big one, he got a fast approach to the bar — it looked super."

After breaking the Russian Brumel's record Stones called it quits so he could catch a flight to compete Saturday in Los Angeles.

Smith, the only man to pole vault 18 feet indoors, set his new mark Friday night in Montreal with a soaring 18-2½ at the season's inaugural International Professional Track Meet.

Smith, from Redondo Beach, Calif., broke his previous indoor mark of 18-1¾ on his third vault

New lights pay off for Sacred Heart

Sedalia Sacred Heart continued its strong post-Christmas surge with a convincing 76-52 win over LaMonte in front of a packed homecoming crowd Friday night.

The game was the first under the Gremlins new, $2,000 lighting system.

"The kids really played well," said Gremlins coach Tom Jennewein.

"It was what I thought our best team effort this year. Our passing game went extremely well," he continued.

Things have gone in the Grems' favor for the most part since the Christmas vacation. Sacred Heart has come out on top in three of the four games since the break. Their only loss was to highly-touted St. John's of Kansas City, and that by only two points.

In addition to Friday night's win over LaMonte, which moved Sacred Heart's Kaysinger Conference mark to 2-3, the Gremlins have notched wins over Sweet Springs and Precious Blood of Liberty.

Sacred Heart's man-to-man defense netted the Gremlins a 20-10 lead in the first quarter. By the half, Sacred Heart was ahead by 22, 40-18. The Grems added six more points to their margin in the third period to salt the game away.

Rick Weller and Mark Register again were the big guns for Sacred Heart in the victory. Weller scored 21, while Register was right behind with 20.

John Borchers (12) and Mel Simon (11) also reached double figures.

For LaMonte, Bill Hurt was tops in the game with 24. Tom Hughes followed with 12.

LaMonte kicked the night off winning the girls volleyball contest.

Between the varsity and junior games, Trisha Fangohr was named as Sacred Heart's 1974-75 homecoming queen. Miss Fangohr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Fangohr, 2504 Margaret.

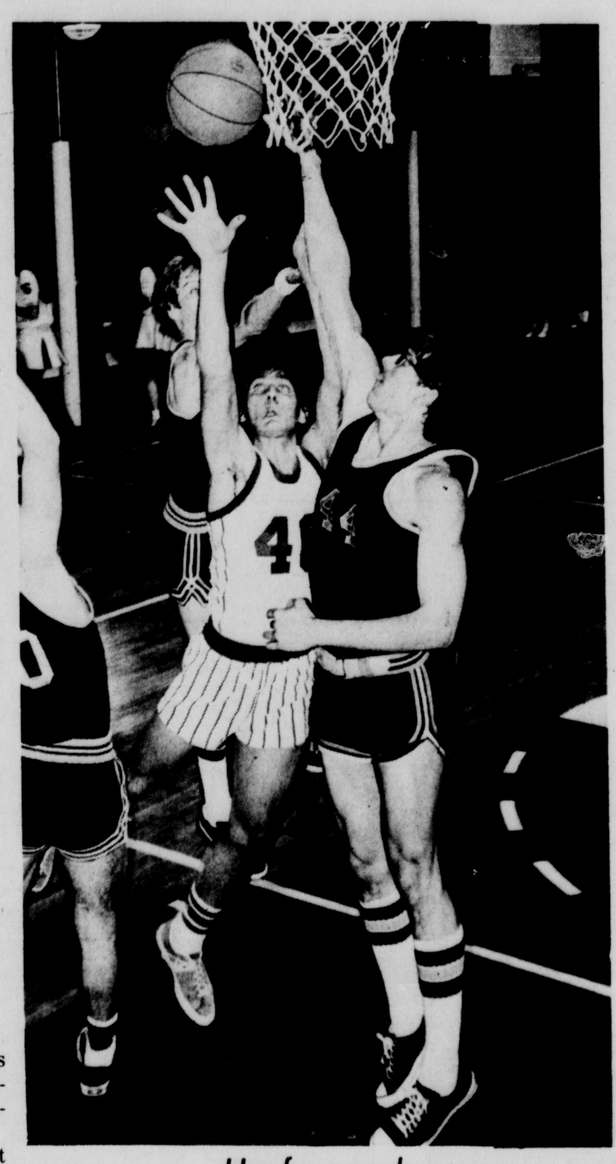

Sacred Heart visits Lincoln (Tuesday) and Smithton (Friday) in back-to-back league games this week.

Scoring

Sacred Heart (76) — Mark Register 20, Bernie Kloppel 8, Mel Simon 11, Rick Weller 21, John Borchers 12, Joe Bellmer 4.

LaMonte (52) — Tom Hughes 12, Bill Hurt 24, Scott Thompson 8, Lee Stover 2, Tim Oswald 6.

Indiana tops Northwestern

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Top-ranked and undefeated Indiana, paced by Kent Benson's 20 points, exploded in the second half to bury Northwestern 82-56 Saturday in a Big Ten basketball. The Hoosiers are now 16-0.

Trailing by four points early in the first half, the Hoosiers wore down Northwestern's zone defense for a 39-29 lead at intermission, then coasted to victory in the final 20 minutes. The triumph boosted Indiana's first-place record in the Big Ten to 5-0. Northwestern is 1-4.

Coach Bobby Knight emptied his bench once Indiana took command to extend the nation's longest winning streak to 19 games over two seasons.

Scott May led the second-half Hoosier spurt by hitting for seven straight points that helped open up a 21-point Indiana leana lead, 54-33, with 13:47 remaining in the game.

After four straight points by Northwestern, the Hoosiers then outscored the Wildcats 12-0 in a 4½-minute span to take a 66-37 margin.

The 6-foot-11 Benson had broken up a close game in the first half by hitting for 10 points in the final 10 minutes of the period.

The Hoosiers took the lead for good with 10:25 remaining in the first half when Quinn Buckner hit a jump shot to put them on top 19-17.

Randy White's attitude: money and more money

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The days of playing for fun are over, and Randy White knows it. In about 10 days he'll be letting some National Football League team know just how much he understands that.

White is 22. He's 6-foot-3, weighs about 255 and runs 40 yards in the incredibly fast time of 4.6 seconds. He's very likely the most valuable college football player in the country.

And when the NFL holds its draft on Jan. 28, White is considered the best bet to be the first player selected.

"Being number one in the draft would be an honor, but it's not really that important to me," said the two-time All-American defensive lineman from the University of Maryland.

What White does want is money, and he intends to get it.

"In college, football was fun. In the pros, it's a business and you'd be a fool not to get all the money you can. That's what I'm after," he said. "Money."

White, a Wilmington native who was honored here this week as Delaware's outstanding athlete of 1974, says he will do his negotiating through an attorney. He hasn't hired one yet, but he has been beseiged by countless sports agents anxious to reap rewards from this valuable property.

If White is drafted first, it will be either by the Dallas Cowboys or Baltimore Colts. The two teams will flip a coin today for that right.

Then there is the shaky World Football League, which White is not ignoring.

"The Philadelphia team in the WFL has talked to me," he said. "I know about their problems, but if they put the money in the bank that's good enough for me."

And with White's talents, the price will be high.

Miller leads at Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Johnny Miller continued his domination of the pro golf tour, shooting a five-under-par 67 and pulling away to a three-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Dean Martin-Tucson Open.

The slender blond, playing with machine-like precision and detachment, put together a three-round total of 202, 14-under-par, under the warm, desert sun that bathed the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Club course.

Miller, the 1974 Player of the Year, is gunning for a second consecutive victory and fourth in a row over two seasons.

His 260 total in Phoenix last week was the lowest 72-hole score in 20 years of tournament competition.

He has led or shared the lead at the end of every round this year. In order, he has scores of 67, 61, 68, 64, 66, 69 and 67 this year for a stroke average of 66.0.

"I guess I'm stuck with playing for second again," said John Mahaffey, three strokes back after a 69 and a 205 total. "The way this guy's playing is just phenomenal. He's amazing.

"He had to bogey No. 17 just to make it interesting.

"I'm playing the best I've played in a long, long time and I can't even sniff this guy."

Red-haired Tom Watson was alone in third with a 67-206.

The group at 207, five strokes back of Miller, included former masters champion Tommy Aaron, veteran Gene Litler, Mike Hill, Leonard Thompson and Don Iverson. Iverson's 66 was the best round of the day. Litler and Hill had 67s, Thompson 69 and Aaron 70.

Arnold Palmer had a 67 before turning to his duties as a television commentator and put together a three-round total of 210.

PGA champ Lee Trevino, still weakened by flu, had a 70-213.

Miller owned only a single-stroke lead when the day's play started but quickly stretched it out.

He reached the par-five second with two big wood shots and just missed an eagle putt. The birdie was a tap-in.

He birdied the second from seven feet, lofted a five iron to within 30 inches of the cup on the eighth hole, scored from 15 feet on the 11th, from 20 on the 13th and went to six under par with a pitch to five feet on the 15th.

His only bogey came on the 17th, where he missed the green, and he lipped out a five-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

Whitworth leads by one

MIAMI (AP) — Erratic Kathy Whitworth sank some clutch putts Saturday, taming Doral Country Club's 6,229-yard "Blue Monster" course with a one-under-par 71 for a onestroke lead at the halfway point of the 36-hole Triple Crown Golf Tournament.

Right behind her was Canadian Sandra Post, who bogied four of the first six holes but then settled down for an even-par 72 and a one-shot advantage over Judy Rankin.

At 74 in the $50,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association event, offering a new car and $15,000 check to the winner, were Betsy Cullen and Mary Mills.

At 76 were Murle Breer and Japan's Chako Higuchi Matsui, at 77 was JoAnn Prentice and out of contention with an eight-over-par 80 was Australia's Margie Masters.

The field of nine for the event was selected on the basis of finishes in the Dinah Shore, European and Far East LPGA tournaments last year, plus point standings.

Failing to qualify were the LPGA's three leading money-winners of 1974—JoAnne Carner, Jane Blalock and Sandra Haynie.

Also missing for the tournament, offering a minimum of $1,000, are four other members of 1974's Top 10—Sandra Palmer, Carol Mann, Carole Jo Skala and Donna Caponi Young.

Opening lead — K ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In yesterday's article Dr. John Fisher needed two quick trump entries to dummy to bring home his slam.

He could get the second entry by leading a trump toward dummy, going up with the queen and dropping a singleton jack. Or he could finesse dummy's nine and play West for holding jack-small. He made the latter play and it worked. It wasn't a sure thing, but it was the best play from the mathematical standpoint.

The reason lies in something called the principle of restricted choice.

When the low diamond was led, West followed with the four spot. That left the five and jack unaccounted for and at first glance you would say that it was even money to which defender held the jack.

It wasn't. It was 2 to 1 that West would hold the jack.

The reason is that if West held five-four he might well elect to play the five instead of the four. If he held jack-four he would automatically play the four. Roughly, he would play the four from five-four about half the time so it was twice as likely that the actually played four came from jack-four and that the jack was left in the West hand.

We didn't bother with the possibility that West held all three trumps because there was no way to make the slam against that combination.

Grain stock surplus revised

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has revised slightly its estimates of the grain stocks that will be left over at the end of this crop year in the spring.

But it is saving until the end of the month any major adjustments in its market-influencing figures.

On Thursday, the monthly crop report gave a final figure for the 1974 corn crop of 4.65 billion bushels — still 18 per cent below the year before, but 30 million bushels above the November estimate.

So on Friday the Outlook and Situation Board changed the official 1974-75 carryover to a range of 295 to 315 million bushels — but without changing either the anticipated domestic demand or projected exports in food shortages.

The board said it is holding back any changes in its estimates of the use of corn and other feed grains and wheat until after the quarterly grain stocks report comes out and it has a better idea of demand during the last three months of 1974.

But the new supply and demand estimates did reflect sluggishness in the use of soybean meal recently, prompting a 15-million-bushel decline since the last report in the estimated soybean crush. That means a range of 735 million bushels to 765 million.

Soybean production estimates also were a little below the November crop report estimates.

The board further raised its expectations about rice exports with the indications of a record supply unchanged at 121.9 million hundredweight.

Increasing foreign demand for this grain, something the government has been trying to encourage, prompted the board to estimate exports at between 75.9 million hundredweight and 73.1 million, or two-thirds of the projected crop.

That meant the economists also had to drop the anticipated rice carryover from a range of 11.4 to 17.4 million to one of 9.2 to 12.5 million, still about 50 per cent above the stocks on hand when this crop started coming in.

Its principal bad news was for cotton growers — confirming "extremely weak demand for U.S. cotton, both here and abroad."

The crop estimates are running well over a million bales below 1973, and with demand likely to fall almost four million bales below last season, the board says year-end inventories may be up to 6.3 million bales from 3.9 million when the season began.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., has reintroduced his proposed Family Farm Inheritance Act, which is again expected to be passed by the Senate.

Last year, the House did not act on the bill in part because of expectations that the impeachment process would leave little time for other legislatton.

But the House Agriculture Committee this session will be markedly different, aside from not having that distraction.

Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., choice of the House Democratic Steering Committee to be the liberal new chairman, will head a membership that in half the cases has urban roots. While that means rough sledding for many bills farm groups support, several of those new members have at least romantic notions about preserving family farms they may never have seen, which mesh well with the more economic reasons farm-rooted veteran members have given for supporting the act.

Bayh said his bill would exclude from estate taxes the first $200,000 of the farm's value — a value that is geared more to inflated real estate prices than the land's agricultural worth, driving farm families to sell parcels to pay the taxes and often leaving them with too little acreage to make farming pay.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz is losing his top aide of the last two years to the call of the aide's family farm and extensive related businesses.

But the department said Friday, in announcing Donald E. Brock's resignation, that the aide would continue as a special consultant to Butz after he assumes active management of the Brock Ranches in California.

Replacing Brock Feb. 17 as executive assistant will be Evan J. Hale, his administrative assistant for the last year and a veteran of public information work for USDA and the Idaho Farm Bureau.

SALES MANAGEMENT A UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY

A recent Fortune Magazine survey indicates that we are one of the fastest growing companies in America.

We are a leading New York Stock Exchange corporation and a leading manufacturer of industrial and specialty products whose sales have increased dramatically over the past 14 years.

Quality sales people continue to be the life blood of our company and the individual we seek will be guided toward the most important management functions in our corporation; the hiring and training of successful salespeople.

You will participate in an accelerated sales management training program and your starting point will be the selling of our product line. You will then advance solely on the basis of your own ability. Starting income will be based on your needs and past earnings, plus profit sharing, insurance programs, and stock benefits. If you can convince us that you are the one we need we are confident we can satisfy your desire for future growth, responsibility, and financial rewards.

Man in trouble

Former Oklahoma Gov. David Hall, left, leaves the federal courthouse in Oklahoma City Thursday with his wife, Jo and attorney D. C. Thomas after being indicted by a federal grand jury on four counts of extortion and illegal use of interstate facilities. The counts allege he solicited a $50,000 bribe in exchange for his influence over the investment of $10 million from the state retirement fund.

Ruling favors the land

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Conservationists are optimistic that a recent court judgment may be the salvation of the nation's badly damaged public grazing lands.

A federal judge in Washington, D.C., ruled last month that the Bureau of Land Management—BLM—has displayed a "lack of diligence" in maintaining the millions of acres of grazing land under its charge. He ordered it to begin detailed environmental analyses of its historic grazing policies.

The bureau in 1973 acknowledged that only 16 per cent of the 150 million acres of bureau-managed grazing land is in good or excellent condition, while 84 per cent is in fair, poor or bad condition.

An April 1974 bureau report on the effects of livestock grazing on wildlife, watershed, recreation and other resource values in neighboring Nevada documented what it said was serious environmental damage. The report, in fact, flatly stated that wildlife habitat is being destroyed.

"Uncontrolled, unregulated or unplanned livestock use is occurring in approximately 85 per cent of the state and damage to wildlife habitat can be expressed only as extreme destruction," the report said.

It added that overgrazing has caused meadows to be invaded by sagebrush and rabbitbrush, cutting meadow habitat available to wildlife in half. It said hundreds of miles of pure streams had also deteriorated.

The judge cited a report by the Council on Environmental Quality which stated that much of the vast public rangeland in the West "remains in desperate condition, as wind, rain and drought have swept over them and eroded their exposed soils."

"Overgrazing has been a problem historically in the West and the BLM has not dealt adequately with the problem," said Terry A. McGowan, a public resource specialist and acting director of the BLM's Utah office.

But he said that in Utah alone the BLM only has 19 range experts to cover 23 million acres. He added at that writing a single grazing allotment management plan takes three months alone.

In an opinion issued with the judgment, U.S. District Court Judge Thomas A. Flannery said that without localized assessments of grazing patterns, "there is a serious threat of injury to public lands."

Flannery ordered that environmental analyses should be more localized, without spelling out how small the unit to be analyzed must be.

Roscoe: A pilot's friend

KORAT AIRBASE, Thailand (AP) — The last U.S. Air Force F105 fighter-bombers have left Thailand, but Roscoe is still on the job.

Roscoe, a lop-eared brown dog of indeterminate ancestry, was friend, confidant and early warning system to the F105 pilots who flew hazardous bombing and ground fire-suppression missions over North Vietnam before the Paris Treaty.

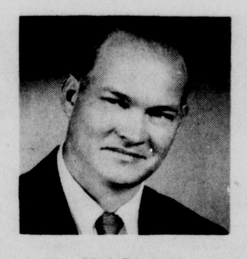

If Roscoe slept through a premission briefing, it was said, the mission would be a "milk run." If his ears twitched and he paced the briefing room, pilots' stomachs would tighten as they prepared for flak, missiles and MIGs.

The legend of Roscoe began nine years ago, when he flew in from Kadena, Okinawa, with the first F105 squadron deploying to Thailand. His young owner was shot down shortly afterward, and the legend says Roscoe showed up daily at the flight line waiting for him to return.

The 388th Tactical Fighter Wing adopted Roscoe, and he became the best known personality on this base 165 miles northeast of Bangkok. He was an inveterate hitchhiker, a regular at briefings and debriefings and a full-fledged member of the officers' club.

Last summer a health inspection team objected to Roscoe's dining at the officers' club, but Roscoe used his pull with Wing Commander Col. John P. Russell and the River Rats Fighter Pilots Association, which pays his club dues, and kept his rights.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR VALERIE HARPER

What does your husband say about your big success on TV?—P. M. T., Muncie, Ind.

● He's only happy for me! People often ask: Aren't you worried about being so successful? Dick loves me very much. Dick and I are each other's best friend. Besides that, we're not up for the same parts! So where's the competition? He doesn't need a little woman at the stove with bare feet to make him feel like more of a man. That's crazy. People have actually asked him, "What's it like to be Mr. Valerie Harper?" He just laughs and handles it very well indeed. He tells them, "I'm not. We're just two people living together."

FOR JIM HARRIS, Los Angeles Rams quarterback

No black man before ever quarterbacked a pro team for more than one season. Why didn't you change positions in college?—Donald Roberts, Durham, N.C.

● My coach at Grambling wouldn't let me. I asked him if I could change to another position so I could have a better chance in the pros but he wouldn't hear of it. He said, "You'll remain a quarterback and one day you'll make the pros"—and he was right.

FOR ARTHUR GODFREY

I heard that you missed a flight somewhere in the Pacific in World War II, and that the flight disappeared. True?—Janice Menesis, Lodi, N.J.

● Yes. I was supposed to take a seaplane from Honolulu to the mainland in 1944. Arriving at the airport too late, I went to the radar room to watch the departure. As we watched, the blip on the screen suddenly disappeared. No trace of the plane was ever found. It might have been blown up by a bomb.

FOR SEN. JOHN V. TUNNEY (D-Calif.)

Why are prisoners paid only 25 cents an hour for their work? Wouldn't a higher wage take their families off welfare—after deducting an amount for the inmates' unkeep?—L. Avila, Valinda, Calif.

● U.S. prison "wages" are designed to get prisoners to learn a useful skill—that's all. We do need to encourage prisoners to learn skills to prevent them from landing in jail again, but the prison-system budget is woefully tight already, and I just don't think higher payments are feasible.

FOR BOBBY RIGGS

What happened to the pig Billie Jean King gave you at your tennis match?—B. J. & C. H., Ventura, Calif.

● He lives in Oklahoma City with the man who wrote "The Ballad of Bobby Riggs," and is doing nicely. The composer said he'd present it to Billie Jean at our return match. About that, I'm waiting for her to get into the mood, but so far she hasn't shown any inclination to meet me on the courts again. I guess she's scared she might not be so lucky a second time.

FOR NATALIE WOOD

Do you have a weight problem? If so, what do you do about it?—P. G., Savannah, Ga.

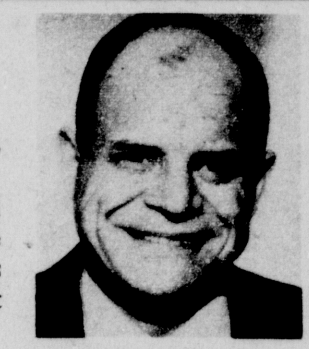

● Weekends I eat whatever I want. During the week I stick to an 800-calorie diet. The first thing to bear in mind is to avoid the old punishment/reward routine. When some people get down to where they want to be, they say self-righteously, "I punished myself for three months. Now I'm going to reward myself." So they go on a binge and soon they're right back where they started.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

You get into embarrassing situations on TV and in the movies. How about in real life?—P. H., Fort Worth, Texas

● Early in my career clothes were a luxury because of my anemic bank balance. Once I was invited to a big party and I panicked because everyone had seen my one dress many times. I went to an off-the-beaten-track place and got a gorgeous gown for half-price. When I got to the party, guess what? Lots of other women were wearing my dress! My only consolation was that they were as red-faced as I was.

FOR DON RICKLES, comedian

How did you break into the big time?—John Lafferty, Chicago, Ill.

● I understand that the fact that Frank Sinatra enjoyed being "insulted" by me in clubs led to my first appearance on the Johnny Carson show. The "Tonight" show audiences loved the way I roughed up Johnny and so did he. He kept asking me back—and I was on my way.

FOR KAY BALLARD

Of all the things you've done, what makes you proudest?—S. R., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● Learning how to drive and swim—both after 40! I never had the courage before, but since I live in L.A., where a car is essential, I made up my mind to learn. I also have a pool, and it seemed a waste of money not to use it. My swimming lessons were unique. My co-students were six months old! And they caught on much more quickly.

Alice Crimmins

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

What was the outcome of the appeal of Alice Crimmins, who was convicted of killing her two children in New York? —Mrs. L. DeR., East Hartford, Conn.

● The conviction has been reversed by an appellate court—but Mrs. Crimmins is not out of danger yet. According to George Carpozi, Jr.—who wrote "Ordeal by Trial: The Alice Crimmins Case"—the New York-Queens D.A.'s office will ask the N.Y. State Court of Appeals to reinstate the conviction. Alice is out on bond and has been dating her wealthy contractor friend, Anthony Grace. They were photographed watching the Mets at Shea Stadium. When Mrs. Crimmins, a former waitress, was first released from prison, she became a secretary. Now Carpozi can't even get a follow-up interview. Because of the pending appeal, Alice is under strict orders from her lawyer not to talk to the press.

Advice to Husbands: Start Talking!

(Here's Why–And How, Too)

By Dr. Martin Symonds with Joan Rattner Heilman

Ever drive around in the dark looking for a certain address? Most men would rather spend a half hour searching and circling than admit they need help by stopping to ask directions. Men tend to be active, not reflective.

So, alas, we men tend to be the ones who will wait until a marriage is in real difficulty before we realize the need for repairs.

All marriages require preventive maintenance. Good, healthy marriages are never accidental, but always the result of constant work and continual repair. Marriages are like houses—every day you let a house go, the more likely it is you'll eventually have major problems. If you ignore a leaking pipe, you may soon have a flood in your living room. If you neglect termites, your porch may fall down.

There is one thing that is more important than anything else: talking. The most common complaint a psychiatrist hears from a disenchanted wife is, "We don't talk any more. We have nothing to say to each other." Or, "He never listens to me." The essence of good marriage is the freedom to communicate oneself to the other, to hear what the other is truly saying. You must keep communications flowing if you want your marriage to remain the place you'll want to be the rest of your life.

I talked to a patient recently who said, "What does she want? I gave her a new dishwasher. I gave her more money for the house. I never complain when she buys clothes. What does she want?" She wants him, she wants honest attention and genuine respect. Talking—out loud, in understandable words—is the only way to achieve this. In your whole lifetime, there will be only a handful of people you will be able to trust with you. One of them should be your wife.

You must not go silent. Your wife is not a mind reader. Though she knows a lot about you and gets many nonverbal messages you send, she can't be expected to know what you are thinking, what it is you really want and expect, hope and fear. You must let her in on your secrets; she'll let you in on hers, and you will be more than doubly strong. Your wife is your best friend, or she wants to be. Most married couples whose marriages have gone stale have stopped talking, their communications have become rusty.

Okay, you may say, we've stopped talking. How do we begin again?

First, just start talking. Use your voice. Don't allow silences to become prolonged and don't wait for your wife to begin the conversation. Talk, even though you may not get an immediate response. I deal with many silent patients. If they don't talk, I talk. I talk until finally they begin. It always works.

"Even if your job is driving a truck between here and Cincinnati every single day via the exact same route, something different happened this time, and your reactions and thoughts about it are altered. You are not a blank, and neither is your wife."

What do you talk about? Anything at all. Not the state of the world, unless that's really on your mind, but, rather, just plain everyday experiences, everyday feelings. Even if your job is driving a truck between here and Cincinnati every single day via the exact same route, something different happened this time, and your reactions and thoughts about it are altered. You are not a blank, and neither is your wife. If you recognize that, you will never exhaust the possibilities for conversation.

Also, try to use "feeling" words, if only to say, "I really like pastrami." This gives your wife an opportunity to express her feelings about pastrami. It declares your position and invites other views. Explain your feelings about what may be mundane experiences.

At the same time, it's important to realize that there can never be complete openness between two people. You can never know everything about your wife because she herself doesn't know everything about herself. Not only does she change every day, just as you do, but she is not completely in touch with her unconscious, just as you are not in touch with yours. It's impossible to "possess" anyone completely—which shouldn't discourage you, but lead you on to find out more and more.

When your wife does talk, you listen. Communication requires one speaker at a time, one listener at a time. Two talkers or two listeners aren't communication. Most people want to talk. What they require is receptivity, an interested ear. If they aren't truly listened to, they will stop communicating.

Listen receptively – not defensively, guiltily, argumentatively, wearily. Listening isn't looking for justice, who's right and who's wrong, it's merely hearing, receiving. It's discovering the other person's message.

Express your ideas clearly. I remember the story of one of my patients who asked his girl friend, "Would you marry me?" She took it as a proposal. In fact, all he wanted to know was if she would ever consider such a possibility. If you are clear, there won't be much of "I thought you wanted to go out tonight. I'd have been happy staying home." Silence, or chickenhearted mumbling, is easily misunderstood. It can mean agreement, disapproval, indifference. Say what you mean and say it clearly.

If your wife has problems, never give her the business of, "Don't worry about it." Let her explain, let her complain. You don't have to do something, you don't have to come up with a solution just to show how smart you are. She doesn't necessarily want solutions—she wants a husband who cares. Make it your business to find out her real message, her real concerns. And, most important, ask questions. It is a way to show your interest.

Asking questions can also be an open door to talking. Ask her about herself, like, "What do you plan to do when you get home?" At first she may respond with suspicion, "Why do you want to know?" But she'll soon be happy to tell you, and to want to hear about you.

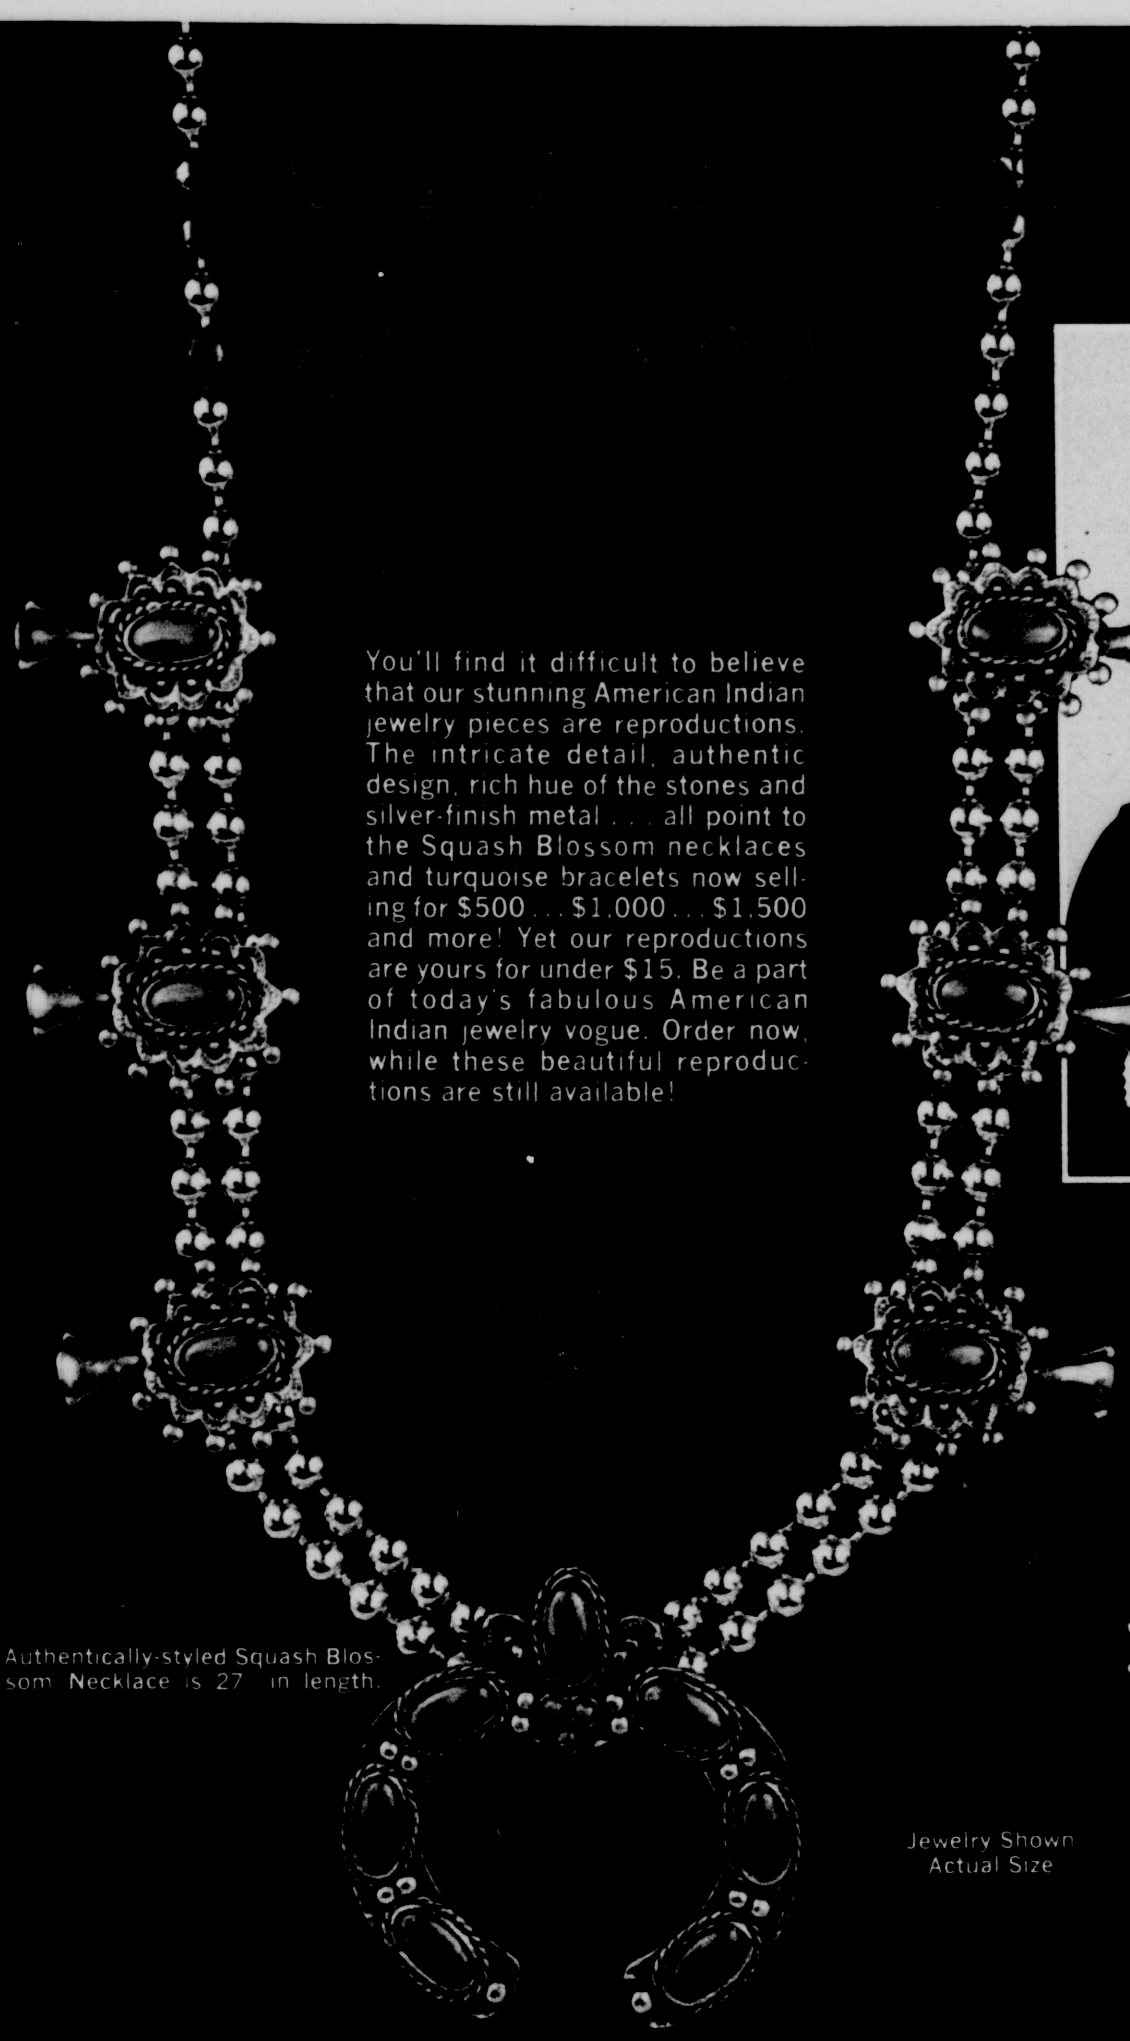

Once she talks, don't attack. Your job as a communicator is to keep the lines open, not to shut them again with a put-down. Don't use what you know against her. People must feel safe if they are to reveal themselves. Always accentuate the positive. Don't be critical and don't be stingy with praise. Your wife will treasure you for your positive statements, even if they are only "I like your dress," or "This is a delicious meal."

This doesn't mean there's anything wrong with showing disagreement or hostility. In a healthy marriage, there's room for angry feelings. Not everyone disagrees peacefully, and it's impossible to avoid all conflict. A marriage without disagreement isn't an honest one. The point to keep in mind is that there must be room for growth and resolution. Differing with respect for her opinions and feelings promotes communication. No wife wants a "Yes, dear" husband—he's not only boring, he's not communicating.

Another thing: Don't be afraid to touch—physically and verbally. Just as expressing some hostility is essential in a healthy marriage, so is the expression of affection and connection. A mere pat, a kiss on the nose, a simple, "You look pretty," a squeeze of the hand, a "You've done a good job," can be tremendously gratifying. You are taking notice. You are saying, "I like you." Many men think, "She knows I love her, I don't have to keep saying it." But you do have to keep saying it—and showing it.

Bringing home flowers occasionally certainly won't hurt, but even better is a gift of words, like, "You look tired, my turn to cook." "I could hardly wait to get home. This is where I'm myself." Give her a sign that you care, you understand, you're in this world together. Reaching out brings response.

These remedies are not designed for bad marriages, which will require major repairs with the help of a specialist, but for basically sound marriages that have begun to run down. For the remedies to work, you must have a sincere desire to put some effort in. If you do, I guarantee the results.

The Hudson Brothers:

Unexpected Kings of Our "Ask Them Yourself" Mailbags

"Whatever we do, we do together," says Brett (left) of his brothers Bill and Mark. "If one of us gets a cold, we all sneeze together."

A question that's always cropping up in the mailbags of the "Ask Them Yourself" editor is, "Who's the most popular with FAMILY WEEKLY readers?"

Over the last few months, we've had literally an avalanche of cards directed to the Hudson Brothers. We picked out some of the questions—and answers—that will introduce Bill, 25, Mark, 23, and Brett, 21, to you, and give you some idea of their background.

FOR BRETT
Why do you always say, "Thanks, Mom," at the end of your show, but never refer to your father?

● My father deserted us when Bill was five, Mark was three and I was one. My mother had to choose between working or being a mother to her children. Mom refused to leave us—so we went on welfare and went to live with our grandparents in Portland, Ore. When I began first grade, Mom worked from 9 to 2 as a legal secretary. She was there when we left for school and was there when we came back. She didn't believe in her children coming home to an empty house. We worship our mom. Moms like her are hard to find (once she even did our homework while we practiced our guitars).

FOR BILL
Why were you chosen to lead your group?

● Because I'm the oldest and "formed" the group in 1966 when I was 16.

FOR BRETT
Are the three of you as close as you seem to be?

● Yes. We've been inseparable since birth. Whatever we do, we do together. If one of us gets a cold, we all sneeze together. We're like one person cut into three equal parts.

FOR BILL
How do you handle your money? Is it split three ways?

● Whatever we earn goes into our corporation and publishing company (which meets our business expenses). We also have trust accounts. We don't draw set salaries, but take what we need, when we need it, from a special "kitty." There are no problems because we trust each other implicitly. If one of us needs a large amount for something personal, we discuss it with the others and it's okay. That sort of thing comes out of the kitty.

FOR BRETT
Do you and your brothers ever argue?

● Of course. If it's business, we abide by what Bill says because he's the oldest and the best businessman. If it's over personal things, we let nature take its course. Our arguments are like tropical storms: They descend without warning and vanish just as suddenly. When Mark fries bacon, instead of laying it gently in the pan, he throws it in. The grease spattered all over me once, and I got mad. One word led to another and Bill rushed in to referee. In the confusion, a glass of milk spilled all over Bill's new suit. Then we saw the funny side, laughed, and peace was declared.

FOR MARK
Are you and your brothers in love with anyone right now?

● Certainly. Bill is wild about Candy Bergen (he doesn't know why, nor does she). Brett is mad about Marsha Mason (or was until she married Neil Simon and broke his heart). I've a secret desire for Joni Mitchell (but since she doesn't know I'm alive and has a boyfriend, I'm sure my passion will go unrequited).

FOR MARK
How do you feel about drugs?

● Our image gives the impression we're clean cut. I must be completely honest: We are! Drugs have no place whatsoever in our lives. We don't believe in condemning or condoning, but we feel that anyone who uses them is to be pitied and helped.

FOR BRETT
What's the story behind the rings you and your brothers wear?

● They're all identical, and were given to us by Mom on our 21st birthdays, engraved with our initials. And we also carry good-luck charms she gave us. Bill has a chain with the Sacred Heart of Jesus. I have a crucifix and Mark has a St. Anthony.

FOR MARK
Would any of you accept an offer that didn't include the other two?

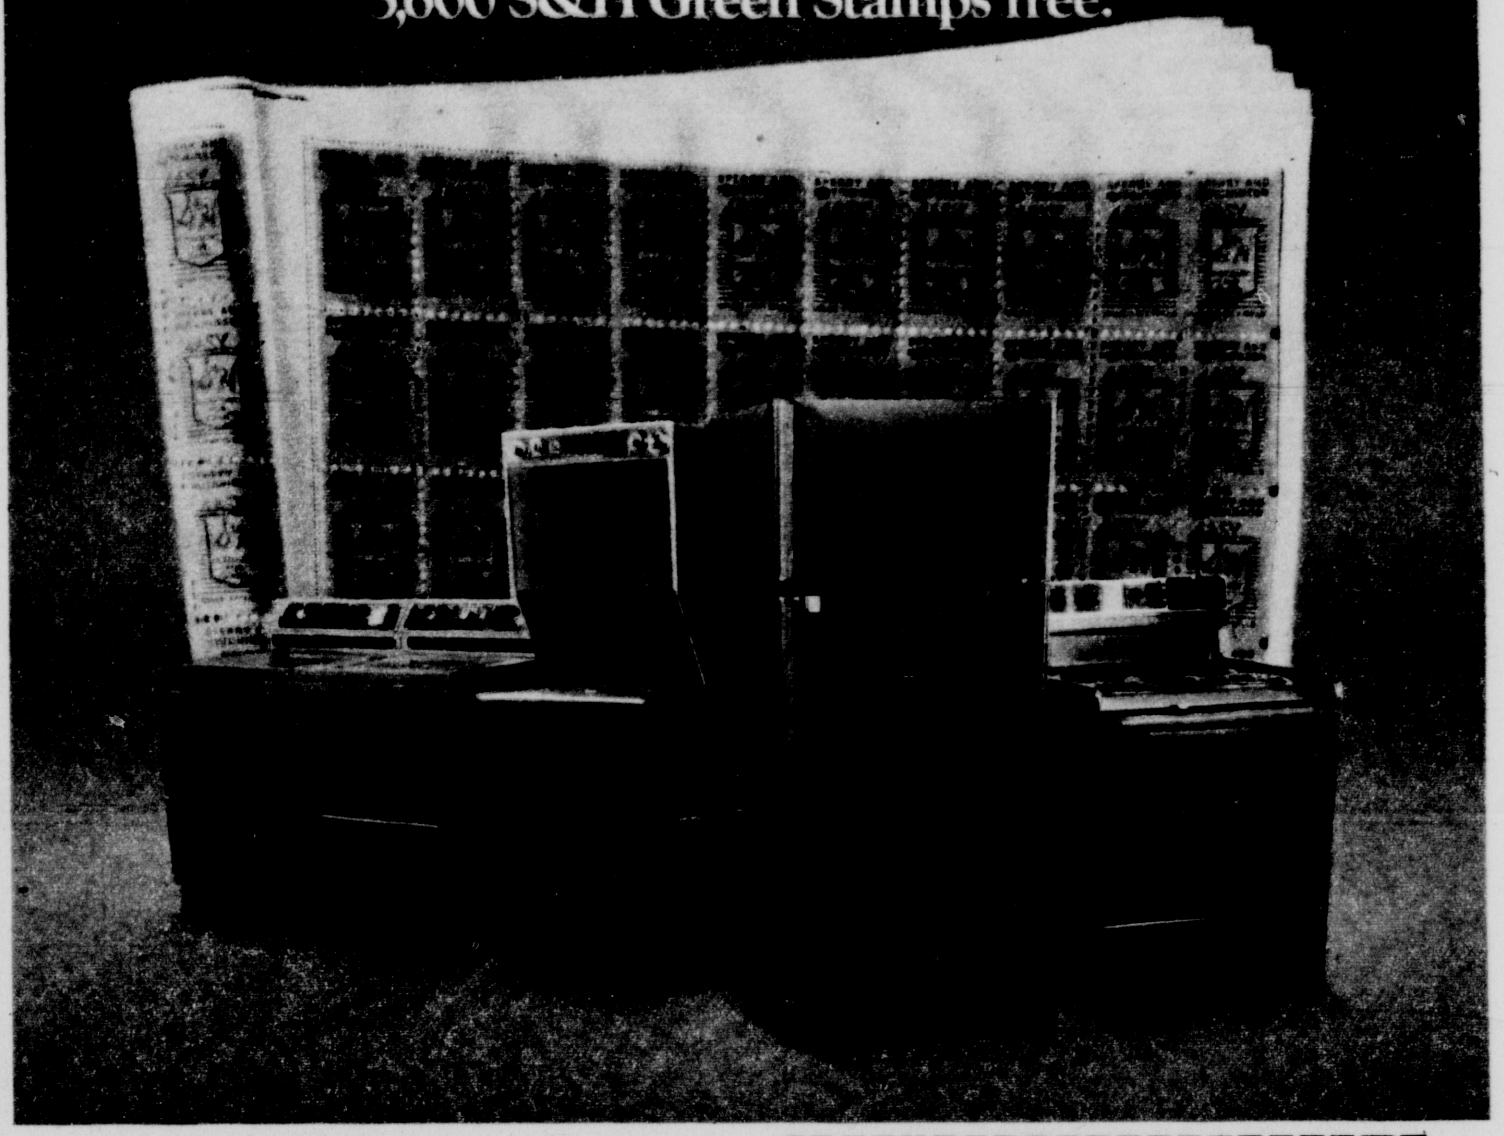

● Definitely not. We plan to stay together. If one was offered a good movie role, it would be rejected. I realize this limits our progress and future, but that's the way it's going to be. If anyone is interested in us, he must take all three. That applies to girls too. If one of us contemplated marriage, and the girl didn't get along with the other two, it wouldn't work.

FOR BRETT
What are your future plans?

● We have 19 morning shows all set, which will carry us through 1975. After that, we don't know. We want to tour as headliners in selected cities and make records. Also, we're writing a movie. It's called "Dinner With Mother and Grandmother." My Mom and Grandma will play themselves. It's about our adventures when we take them out to dinner, and the funny things that go on during the evening.

Tips 'n' Topics

TWO SUGARLESS HINTS:

With the cost of sugar so high, some homemakers are sweetening with honey. To substitute honey for sugar in baking, use ¾ cup of honey for every cup of sugar, but reduce the liquid required in the recipe by ¼ cup. The difference in the final baked product is that cake made with honey will be somewhat moister, because honey absorbs moisture from the air.

A suggestion for a milk-shake recipe without sugar is a homemade Banana Milk Shake. Use bananas with well-flecked skins, which indicates they are very, very ripe. Put them in the refrigerator with the skins on. When bananas are chilled, peel, place in a plastic bag and freeze.

For each banana, cut into 1-inch cubes, add ½ cup milk and ½ teaspoon vanilla extract and place in blender. Blend covered at medium-high speed about 20 seconds. Because bananas get sweeter as they get older, a milk shake made with old, ripe bananas is naturally sweet.

BOOK FOR SUPERMARKETEERS:

"The Supermarket Survival Manual" (1973, $1.25), by Judy Lynn Kemp, Books for Better Living, 21322 Lassen Street, Chatsworth, Calif. 91311. This "how-to-shop" the supermarkets manual gives helpful hints for the novice shopper.

NO MORE SMEARED OR MISSING PRICES?

Annoyed by the "missing price" problem at supermarket checkout counters? It may soon be a thing of the past. Here's why: You may have noticed that a growing number of supermarket products have a small bar of stripes with numbers underneath. This is the Universal Product Code—a ten-digit numbering system for identifying grocery items. The first five digits in the code identify the manufacturer, the second five digits identify the product. Thus each product has a computer-readable label that distinguishes it from other products. How will it work? Checkers will pull the product across an electronic scanner at the checkout counter. In a fraction of a second, the scanner will transmit the code number to the store's mini-computer, where the product will be "looked up" and flashed back to the register for visual display to both customer and checker. Simultaneously, the price will be printed on the customer's receipt, along with the name of the product.

How Fisher-Price lets the sun shine in, even on a rainy day.

As every mother knows, rainy days can make you feel all cooped up. Or they can turn out to be the kind of cozy, giggly get-togethers you remember fondly. It all depends on what the children are up to.

That's why Fisher-Price toys are so right for a long rainy day.

Realistic toys like our three big new Fisher-Price Construction Trucks can load up marbles and dump blocks indoors, when they're not permitted outside.

Imaginative toys like our Play Family Castle spark hours of fascinating make-believe.

Then there are puzzles to puzzle over. Bowling and Basketball games to channel that young energy.

A fat little Tug-A-Bug pull toy to toddle down the hall. Crib & Playpen Toys to fascinate the most curious baby. And cuddly dolls to dress and comb and chat with.

Fisher-Price toys have no batteries to run out at the wrong time. And there are no frustrations for little hands to struggle with. Just lots and lots of interesting things to do. Because with rain on the roof, it's more important than ever to keep everything sunny.

How Sharp Is Your Sense Of Job Success?

True or False: How well you like your job can be more important to your health than diet and exercise. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Success in job hunting depends largely on being at the right place at the right time.

2. How well you like your job can be more important to your health than diet and exercise.

3. People who change the direction of their careers in middle life are usually fugitives from personality problems.

4. The only reason some people don't succeed in life is because they are afraid of success.

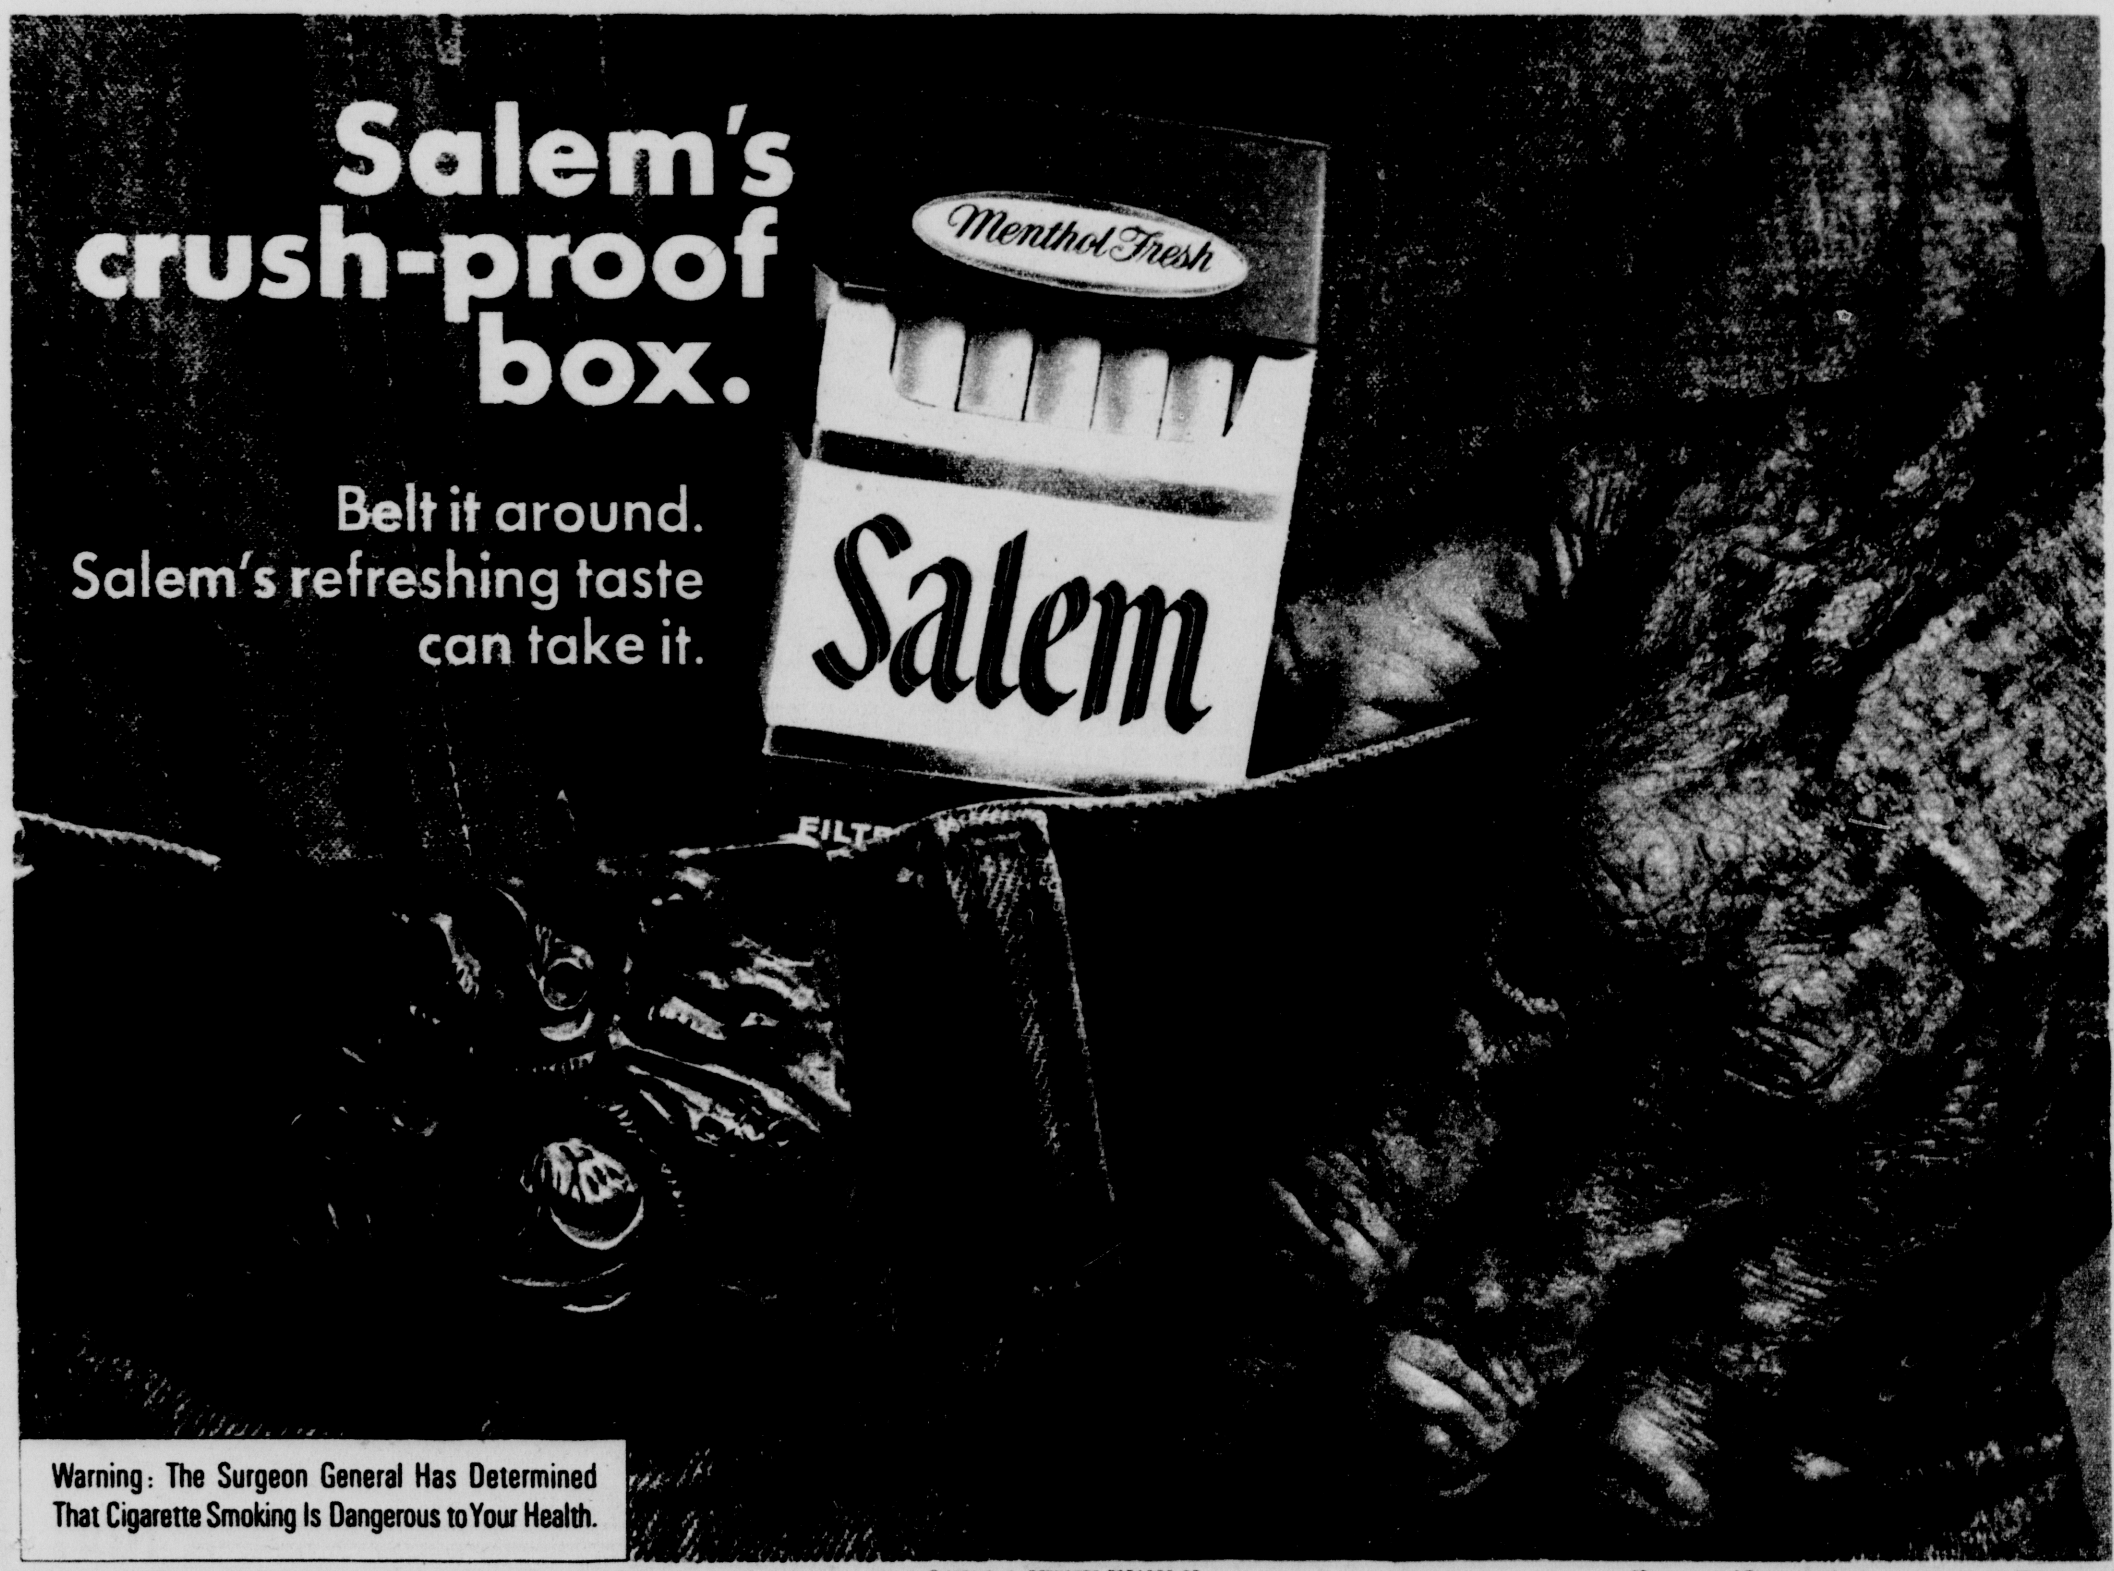

ANSWERS

1. False. There are other factors that are much more important. Two university studies have shown that there are marked differences between the successful and unsuccessful job hunter—both in personality and in job-seeking behavior. "It was found that individuals who were tough-minded, unneurotic, had specific job goals and great self-understanding were highly successful in obtaining jobs." Those who had the greatest difficulty were described as sensitive, dependent, neurotic and passive. The studies showed that individuals who shared a mixture of the two personality-behavior patterns "had a modicum of success getting jobs."

2. True. A 15-year study of aging, reported by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, shows that the greatest single factor in aging is the extent to which a person's job is satisfying. This was found to have a far greater effect on one's life-span than factors such as diet, exercise, medical care and genetic inheritance.

3. False—as evidenced by University of Cincinnati studies in which two groups of males aged 30 to 55 were subjected to interviews and tests. Members of one group had changed careers in mid-life. The other men—though admitting they had at times experienced a desire to change professions—elected to stay in their chosen fields. The findings: "Shifters [those who switched careers] as well as the Persisters [those who did not switch] were found to exhibit good to above-average emotional adjustment." As a matter of fact, there was some evidence that Shifters possessed "a greater sense of self-esteem." Also: Those who had changed their professions in mid-life were more likely to have changed their wives as well!

4. True. Just as some people have a fear of failure, others have a fear of success. Often this fear is so deep-seated that it presents a serious obstacle to achievement. Reasons vary. It may be, as one team of psychologists observes, "that an individual who fears success is one who is prone to worry about antagonizing others were his performance to be superior." Fear of success has also been attributed to "a rigid, punishing conscience that will not allow the person to attain his goal." These people may unconsciously place obstacles in their own paths, limiting their success potential.

Now—for the first time—an international Jet-Setter reveals the "inside" story:

How The Beautiful People Get Rid Of Both Cellulite And Ordinary Fat—Without Dieting!

The exquisite authoress: Luciana Avedon, the former Princess Pignatelli.

Yes, the Beautiful People cannot afford to be fat!

Those stunning, sleekly-slim couples who grace the pages of the fashion magazines and society columns...who spend each new Season in New York and Cannes and Saint Moritz and Saint Tropez...who live surrounded by a horde of admirers and photographers must remain youthful and slim right up to 50...60...70!

And yet they eat lavishly, feasting on exotic cuisines as they travel the globe, but always retaining their fantastic figures.

And, if you were to ask them what they do to maintain their Beautiful People Bodies, the answer would always be the same: "I don't do ANYTHING; I don't diet!"

That's right! The Beautiful People Don't Diet! They enjoy the finest food in the world and yet the needle on the scale barely moves! How do they do it?

For the first time, Luciana Avedon (former Princess Pignatelli and now the wife of the European cosmetics executive, Burt S. Avedon) reveals the "BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE MIRACLE FORMULA" responsible for all those lusciously svelte figures on the society pages. How they NEVER go on fad diets, NEVER take dangerous amphetamines, diuretics or diet pills, and NEVER give up their favorite foods either! How they simply go right on eating the foods they like—but in a special way that keeps them always fashionably slim, without their having to jump on and off the diet merry-go-round.

To give just a few examples:

One California socialite says: "I always keep my weight fluctuation within two pounds. It's bad for the face when you go up and down."

Another stunning fashion leader says: "I weighed more at age 25 than I do now." (She's now 37!)

Another says: "Sitting down to nothing but clear soup or health food depresses me; it makes me feel like an invalid."

And another Italian Beauty confesses: "Take away pasta and I would die!"

But yet they know how to splurge like this without incurring disaster on the scales! They get their food kicks—constantly—but their figures never show it!

They eat the finest food in the world (even the delicacies and "tempters" you'd be horrified to touch), but they do it in a way that never lets them put on more weight than they can simply "peel off" in a few days any time they decide to!

(In fact, these Beautiful People secrets of delicious figure-maintenance are so powerful that, when one young, overweight model was introduced to just one of them, she lost 22 pounds in one month and stayed at that weight from then on! And another young girl, when shown how, lost 20 "impossible" pounds in two short months, even though not a single meal demanded special preparation!)

So, From Now On, Forget About Debilitating Diets! The Beautiful People Don't Use Them—Why Should You?

Once again, let us emphasize that the Beautiful People think dieting is a "bore." They eat well—very well—and they are not fat! They wouldn't think of doing without their favorite foods and the needle on the scale barely changes!

Why then shouldn't you follow their plan and lose weight—pounds and pounds and pounds of it! The process is the same, even if you start with a 50 pound handicap. And you do it all by yourself (without "fat" doctors, or the group therapy approach of diet clubs.) And, yet, (to repeat once again) you do not "sacrifice" the foods you love for a single minute!

Yes, you can still enjoy parties, restaurants, business lunches or dinners, and "super-relaxed" vacations. You can eat all the foods you usually do, and still find the pounds and inches gradually, but permanently, melting off!

Listen, As The Beautiful People Tell You How To:

Condition yourself by developing your own built-in "Fat Radar" so that the minute your weight starts to shoot up, you can shoot it down!

Take off fat while it's still "soft"...before the body has had a chance to make it part of the muscle structure. Before it marbelizes, as in a fat steak, and becomes even harder to lose!

Make the natural diuretic power of food even MORE effective, so that accumulated tissue water drains out of your body faster and you NEVER get that bloated look!

Lose tons of weight—all in the right places—and NEVER get "scrawny" looking in the face. Actually melt unwanted pounds right off your body, and still retain that "youthful" bloom in your face the Beautiful People way!

PLUS...

How to be thin as a model, and still have the energy and stamina of a truck driver!

The Beautiful People's special "Secret Elimination Diet" that disintoxicates your system...drains out internal poisons...at exactly the same time that you are painlessly losing weight!

The Beautiful People "Easy-Diet Plan", a permanent part of your life, so that you continue to lose weight for as long as you wish, and yet NEVER feel deprived!

How to prevent your body from automatically "adjusting" to your first massive weight loss, so that it actually prevents you from taking off even more pounds.

What to do if you are a "sandwich fiend" and don't want to cut them out of your diet.

Why the Beautiful People make sure that they never lose more than 18 pounds at a time.

How they painlessly "retrain their nervous system so that they don't go on eating binges during an "anxiety attack."

The most carefully guarded Beautiful People secret: how to lose weight super-fast, purify your body, and heighten your senses to a new state of awareness at exactly the same time!

How the Beautiful People keep their children from developing unhealthy and fattening eating habits.

What the European Beautiful People do at once when their skin looks bad, they have trouble sleeping, or they are just feeling dreadful.

Why the Beautiful People feel that American men are a "disaster...overweight, over-tobaccoed, over-alcoholed, and undersexed." And, what Beautiful People Males "over 30," do to retain their very special attractiveness.

The Beautiful People "cure" for sporadic over-indulgence. In other words, how to eat your cake, and have a knock-out figure too!

Yes, The Beautiful People Have Been Looking Fabulous For Years THIS Way. Now You'll Learn How, WITHOUT RISKING A PENNY!

You are just as capable of keeping younger, prettier, slimmer and more attractive as any of the Beautiful People you'll read about in this book. And once you know their "secrets", you'll be well on your way to joining the ranks of all the Beautiful People all over the world, who realize that being beautiful also means being slender

SPECIAL ADDED BONUS:

How The Beautiful People "Smooth Away" Ugly Cellulite, The EASY Way!

Yes, while these Beautiful People are incredibly slim and supple at all ages—actually glowing with good health—they have also learned how to FREE themselves of ugly and distorting CELLULITE! (Cellulite, as you may know, is "orange peel fat"—the hard lumps of hideous fat that stick to the back of the thighs, knees, arms, buttocks and back. The same ripply fat pockets that cause desperation and unhappiness in thousands of American women who cannot walk down a beach, or up to a husband or lover, without feeling unattractive or just plain ugly!)

This is not ordinary fat, by any means. And it can't be gotten rid of by ordinary means. Instead, it's bumpy, hard lumps of toxic material—really a gel-like substance—that become trapped in bubbly, immovable pockets just beneath the skin. It's found in pencil-slim models and housewives alike. In fact, it's reputed to disfigure almost 90% of the women in the world! But not the Beautiful People! Why?

BECAUSE OF THESE TWO SIMPLE "CELLULITE CHASERS" THAT YOU CAN USE YOURSELF RIGHT IN YOUR OWN HOME, STARTING IN JUST A FEW MINUTES A DAY!

No, you don't need fancy doctors, or expensive health spas to be able to bid farewell to these unsightly globules. You can achieve spectacular results simply by following these two simple steps beginning on Page 26:

First, attack the cellulite you're carrying around right now through this special self-massage treatment designed to break it up and quickly "wash" this figure-distorting mess right out of your body!

Second, follow the unique Anti-Cellulite-Food Program that will actually help your natural circulatory system to rid your body of annoying substances BEFORE they can build up and become IMMOVABLE CHUNKS OF FAT!

Both these Cellulite Fighters are yours, as just one section of this great Beautiful People Over-All Body Beauty Plan...yours to read from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

Sports Mini-Profile

The ABA's JULIUS ERVING: Is He the Greatest Basketball Player Of All?

When New York Nets fans shout, "Our doctor has the winning prescription," they're not talking about a medical doctor but about their star player, Julius Erving, Jr., better known as "Dr. J." "Dr. J" led the Nets to the championship of the American Basketball Association last season and has won the league's scoring championship for two successive years. Some basketball experts, such as Kentucky's famed Adolph Rupp, call the 6-7, 24-year-old forward "the greatest player in the world today." He is also one of the game's greatest crowd pleasers because of his electrifying movements on the floor and his dazzling shot-making from every conceivable angle. . . . Erving learned his basketball on the playgrounds of Roosevelt, Long Island. He has remained close to his neighborhood friends and helps conduct programs for underprivileged youngsters in the Long Island area. . . . Erving's nickname was hung on him by a schoolboy friend in Roosevelt. He kept calling the friend "Professor," and finally the friend said, "If I'm going to be 'Professor,' you're going to be 'Doctor.'. . ."Dr. J.," as he is now called, played college ball at the University of Massachusetts, where he became the nation's leading rebounder and one of the top college scorers. When he joined the professional Virginia Squires, he created a sensation with his tantalizing "dunk shots" and his ability to steal throws and block shots. One coach said of him, "He's music personified. If you gave him a Stradivarius, he'd fiddle it for you." The Nets acquired him via a seven-year contract estimated to be worth $2.5 million. . . ."Dr. J." thrives under pressure. He's particularly deadly in the final moments of a tight game. He never loses his cool—a trait he ascribes to his younger brother's death from kidney disease about five years ago. Erving recalls, "I cried for days and days. After that, I told myself I was never going to give way to emotions again, no matter what situation I found myself in." Erving is married and the father of a baby boy, Julius Erving III.

Teams of GREAT RESEARCHERS* PROVE How Proper Use of Vitamins Can

CLEAR UP CATARACTS AND OTHER EYE DISORDERS WITHOUT SURGERY OR DRUGS

HERE'S PRICELESS INFORMATION FOR ANYONE WHO WANTS TO PREVENT LOSS OF VISION DUE TO CATARACTS OR GLAUCOMA...CLEAR UP VISUAL PROBLEMS OF ANY KIND...PROTECT EYESIGHT!

By John H. Tobe
world famous author and health expert

It is a statistical fact that one half million Americans this year will undergo surgery for the removal of cataracts. Millions more will needlessly suffer from other eye disorders that impair sight.

But this never need be a problem for you!

After more than fifteen years of painstaking research, meetings, discussions, correspondence with hundreds of leading experts and practitioners . . . after contacting hundreds more men and women who have had cataract surgery or tried other methods of cure . . . I was amazed to find that there are several methods of stopping and reversing cataracts—as long as they have not fully ripened.

Now I stoutly maintain that cataract surgery can be prevented . . . that cataracts and glaucoma can be prevented . . . and that other existing eye disorders may be helped without dangerous drugs or surgery.

Now for the first time in print I reveal what I discovered. I fully cover every known means of curing, treating, and preventing cataracts in my latest book.

CATARACT, GLAUCOMA AND OTHER EYE DISORDERS—PREVENTION AND CURE WITH PROVEN NATURAL METHODS

If you wear glasses now, you can benefit greatly from this revealing book. If you don't wear glasses, you need this book so you may never need to wear them or suffer visual impairment—just by following simple instructions.

This sensational book shows you:

1. The nutritional way to prevent and stop cataracts.
2. The herbal way to stop cataracts.
3. The homeopathic way to stop cataracts.
4. How honey, linseed oil, or a simple common herb have sometimes cured cataracts.
5. The latest surgical techniques—pros and cons.
6. How glaucoma can be prevented.
7. Relationship between cataract and atherosclerosis.
8. Why glasses in most instances are unnecessary—how thousands cast aside their glasses and regained normal 20/20 vision.
9. What you must know before you wear contact lenses.
10. What to do if you have cataracts and don't want surgery. Remember, surgery is forever. Once the lens is removed, it can never be replaced. A plastic or artificial lens is only a harmful mockery. Therefore, I urge you . . . correct the condition, do not allow your vital lens to be surgically removed. You owe it to yourself to investigate safe, successful, natural methods before undergoing drastic cataract or other eye surgery.

SCIENTIFICALLY PROVED

Unbelievable but true . . . this book proves that glasses in most instances are unnecessary. You will learn how thousands cast aside their glasses and regained normal 20/20 vision.

My important book quotes hundreds of experiments which prove that most eye impairments are due to improper diet, shows how, when the dietary deficiencies were corrected, eye difficulties disappeared or were greatly improved practically every time.

Read this book without risk and see how to correct YOUR eye problems, ranging from cataract and glaucoma to major or minor eye troubles.

Learn which vitamin supply the essential factors so necessary to prevent and clear up cataracts, and which specific foods contain these essential vitamins. You see positive research proof as well as dozens of documented clinical case histories to prove every assertion . . .

. . . including concrete proof that cataracts respond when nutritional factors are corrected, and that neither surgery or drugs are necessary. Why accept anything less than the best treatment for something as important as your vision?

IF YOU WEAR CONTACT LENSES . . .

heed this special warning, because there are such grave dangers involved as permanent eye injury. You must read this book before you allow yourself to wear contact lenses. This chapter alone is worth much more than the price of the whole book.

HELPS SAVE YOUR EYESIGHT WHETHER YOU ARE 8 or 80!

This book is as important to the young as it is to the old. By putting the information in this book to use you can have better vision whether you are 8 or 80. Yes it is true. Even at 80 you can definitely improve your vision and avoid destructive, crippling surgery. And you can protect your children's eyesight now before they have had time to ruin it.

Fifteen years of penetrating research, profound study, reading and investigation were required to bring forth the evidence contained in this book. Never before has the truth about cataracts and glaucoma been presented so clearly and straightforwardly.

The first edition was sold out even before publication. The second, third and fourth editions followed and were immediately sold out. So to be sure you get your copy of the new edition promptly, send your order today. Don't wait until your eyes have been damaged or blinded before you gain this vital information that may help prevent eye disorders, cataracts, and glaucoma.

If you do not have trouble with your eyes, then be grateful and thank heaven, but be prepared. Protect yourself. Get a copy of this book to learn how you can safeguard your eyes and never have trouble, dimmed vision, cataracts or glaucoma. You need this book if you value your sight. It is 'must' reading for everyone. Not only do you need to read it for yourself, but you should have it in your library for the benefit of your friends and family. Or better still, send them a copy. Your eyesight is probably your most valuable possession next to your life: you should know how to take care of it.

The Truth Like Is Was Never Told to Laymen Before

Eye surgeons won't tell you what is in this book, because they don't want to miss out on the big fees they get. But you can be sure every word in this book is true. I do not play around with something as important and vital as a person's eyes. In this book you will find no gimmicks, no exaggerations, no misleading statements, no pitches, nor false hopes . . . just the straight, true whole story in language you can understand, and the method and means by which you can avoid surgery and regain your vision.

Because I recognize the great need and importance of this book, especially among older people, I insisted on two things from my publisher. (1) That the type be large, clear and bold so anyone can easily read it, and (2) that the price be such that practically anyone can afford it.

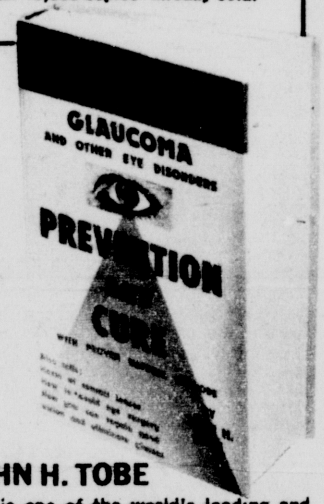

Act Today and Save

The regular price is $9.95. But we have placed a large print order in anticipation of heavy sales, so if you act now, you can purchase a copy for only $7.95—a saving of $2.00. This may be the only time this money-saving offer appears in this publication.

You are fully protected by the 100% unconditional money-back guarantee. Read and study the book at your convenience; if it is not everything I claim, return it and get every penny of your money back.

GIANT SHADE TREE SALE!

America's Most Popular "Fast Growing" Shade Trees

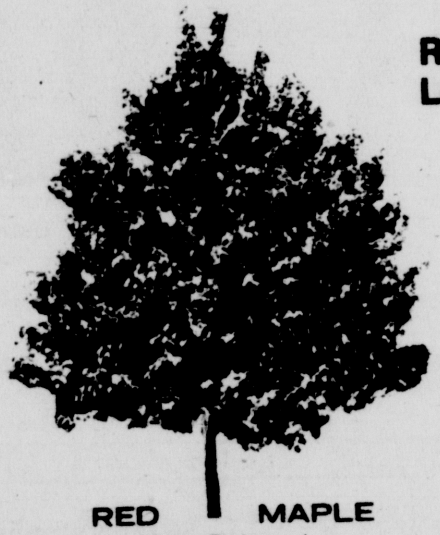

Orange Leaves

SUGAR MAPLE
(Acer Saccharum)

This tree is the largest of all the maples, and is known as a hard maple. Its wood is the source of excellent hard lumber. Its outstandingly beautiful array of yellow and orange hues in the fall make it a sight to remember due to the foliage thickness of the tree. Due to the fact it is long-lived and very hardy, it is a welcome addition to any home. Grows to 60 feet (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Red Leaves

RED MAPLE
(Acer Rubrum)

This is one of the most beautiful of all shade trees. Besides having brilliant scarlet red leaves in the fall of the year, it has another excellent trait — it is an extremely fast grower. It is very easily transplanted and many experts agree it will grow practically anywhere in the U.S.A. Grows to 60 feet (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Yellow Leaves

TULIP TREE
(Lirodendron tulipifera)

This handsome, highly symmetrical tree is a very large growing tree reaching heights of eighty feet or more. Its yellow-green leaves turn bright yellow in the fall and in the late spring it has vivid orange and yellow tulip shaped flowers. Very fast growing and is related to the magnolia. Its physical appearance is very similar, and like the magnolia, is easily transplanted. It is also a hardy tree. Grows to 80 feet (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Green Leaves

THORNLESS HONEY LOCUST
(Gledistsia Triacanthos Inermis)

This shade tree is widely planted as a substitute for the American Elm: this thornless variety has the same form as a graceful wine glass. It is a very desirable lawn tree with lacy fern-like foliage. It is sometimes referred to as the "fastest growing shade tree in America," and has been the subject of many articles on street planting by city governments. It thrives in practically all areas. Grows to 50 feet (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

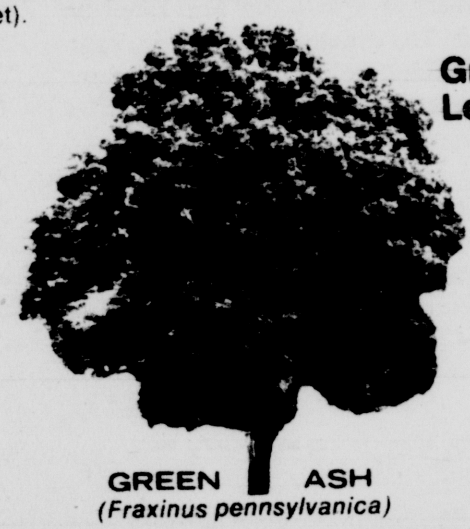

Purple Leaves

SWEET GUM
(Liquidambar Styraciflua)

The Sweet Gum with its regular pyramid outline and bold, star-shaped foliage is one of the best trees for autumn color, turning rich shades of crimson to purple in the fall. It is native to a wide range of the eastern third of the U.S., from New Jersey and central Illinois, south to Florida and Texas. Its symmetrical beauty is an asset to anybody's home grounds. Reaches 50 feet (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Green Leaves

GREEN ASH
(Fraxinus pennsylvanica)

The Green Ash has no equal when it comes to its ability to survive cold and hot temperatures. It has thick, glossy foliage, is a rapid grower and matures into a fine oval-headed tree. Its beautiful green leaves are dense and compact. A real buy for people with difficult climates. Grows to 50 feet (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

ST. JOHN TERRELL
But he doesn't inhale

"I prefer unleaded gasoline. It makes better tasting flames." The speaker is St. John Terrell, better known to TV watchers as Waldo the Fire Eater on Salada Tea commercials. St. John swallows flames, belches out fireballs three feet into the air. St. John says he likes to enjoy a light meal and some liquid when he finishes his performance. "I like iced tea, of course, but chilled tomato juice is really my favorite, along with a cool avocado salad, which helps me return to normal after my act. You see, that's real fire I bellow out. It's dangerous work. You get no second chance. If you accidentally inhale the fire, that's it, you're dead! I only hope kids seeing the act don't get the silly idea they can try it. It would be very disastrous!"

What's it like to work in Red China? Well, for one incredible thing, the factories have three times the number of employees that would be working in similar U.S. plants. Wages are set nationally. The highest of eight labor grades carries the designation "model worker." Most industry works six days a week, eight hours a day, with a half-hour unpaid lunch period. All plants have seven holidays. There are no vacations, but workers may get leaves to visit families in other parts of China. Pension benefits are 70 percent of pay at age 55 for women and age 60 for men. A special exception are coal miners, who retire at age 55. This from an American union official, Gene Derrickson, who recently returned from China.

QUOTE: Is a certain kind of man more apt to become a surgeon? "Yes," says Dr. William J. Sweeney III, a gynecological surgeon. "'When in doubt, cut it out,' is a surgical dictum. We're aggressive. Obviously, it's the disease, not the patient, that we're attacking. And if we get a cancer case, that's when the aggression really comes out. When I have to teach the residents, I say, 'If you're not going to be aggressive with this disease, you're never going to be a cancer surgeon. Go do something else.' And we can spot them early – the young medical students or interns who will be happier just doing obstetrics . . . but not cancer surgery." From "Woman's Doctor," by Dr. William J. Sweeney III with Barbara Lang Stern (Popular Library, $1.75). UNQUOTE.

CROWN PRINCE FREDERIK
Spying on the big people

Every child is overcome with curiosity when Mom entertains friends—even Crown Prince Frederik, six, of Denmark. Recently when Queen Margrethe held a reception for Yugoslavia's President Tito at Fredensborg Castle, the little prince hid himself behind the rail on a balcony, where he had a perfect view of the festivities. From the looks of things, however, the royal balcony needs some work.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

ODE TO THE PHONE BOOK

The phone book is an oddish book,
At least for this one viewer.
It isn't fiction. Novels, though,
Have characters much fewer.

Call it nonfiction, then. So what?
No message it possesses.
It doesn't marshal facts, although
With figures it impresses.

It's not a book a bookstore sells
Or library will loan.
The phone book is a great big book
They give you with your phone.

And yet, though literarily
You judge it reprehensible,
I find the phone book of all books,
For me, most indispensable.

I think my wife may be a little mad at me. Last night I got in at three o'clock in the morning and she was waiting in the living room. She mixed a drink for me; one for herself; sat down beside me and said, "Do you come here often?" —Robert Orben

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES
Kids see life differently. Send contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

Our 12-year-old asked me how I met Daddy. I told her the story my husband always likes to tell: that we were in a carful of people, and he leaned forward from the back seat to the front and kissed me! To that, she replied, "Why did he do that?" When I told her I did not know, our nine-year-old piped up and said, "Oh, well, it's too late now anyway!"

LITTLE EMILY

"Will he be ready for water-skiing season?"

© 1974—R.J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO.

To smoke or not to smoke.

That is the question.

With all the slings and arrows that have been aimed at smoking, you may well be wondering why you smoke at all.

If you don't smoke nobody is urging you to start.

But if you do smoke, you may enjoy it so much you don't want to stop.

There's the rub. Because if you do smoke, what do you smoke?

The cigarettes of the past provided a lot of smoking pleasure but they also delivered a lot of the 'tar' and nicotine the critics have aimed at.

And most of the new wave brands with low 'tar' and nicotine taste like a lot of hot air.

But now Vantage has entered the scene.

Vantage is the cigarette that succeeds in cutting down 'tar' and nicotine without compromising flavor.

While Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you'll find, it certainly is the lowest one you'll enjoy smoking.

If you smoke, try a pack of Vantage. And if you don't, why not show this ad to someone who does.

It might settle the question.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

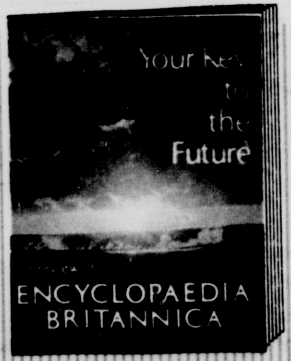

Filter: 11 mg. "tar", 0.7 mg. nicotine, Menthol: 11 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report OCT. '74.

Would You Believe . . . ? I Fell in Love With a Micropaedia

Sound crazy? Maybe it is.

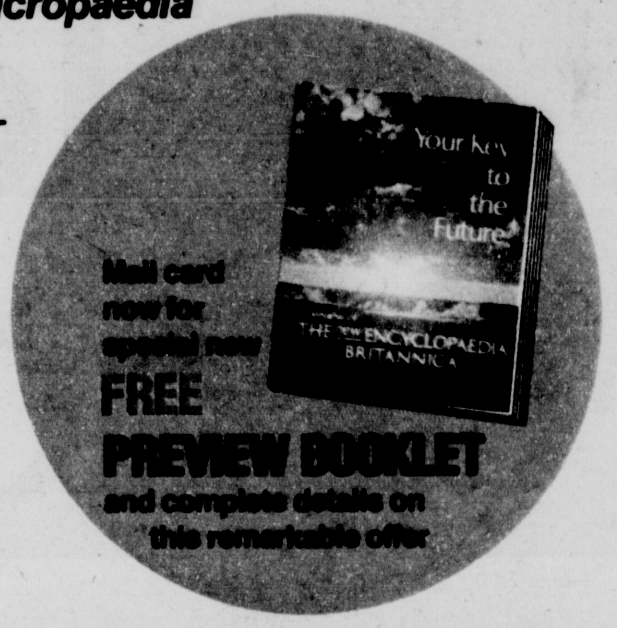

But a short time ago I had an opportunity to get a sneak preview of Britannica's brand-new encyclopaedia and, believe me, it's nothing like the old one that my family cherished for years. In fact, this one is in three parts, and—hold your hat—the part I like most is called the Micropaedia!

Seriously, if you or your children need to have at your fingertips a way to find out about anything at all, this part of THE NEW ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA may get to you, too. But, that's just the beginning.

There are two more parts to this new encyclopaedia, and when you put them all together there's no better family encyclopaedia around.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Outgrown polo shirts make great summer tank tops for boys or girls. Simply cut the necks lower, cut out the sleeves and turn edges and then hem. — MRS. R.B.E.

DEAR POLLY — I have been hospitalized several times and afterward, while recuperating at home, I used an adjustable ironing board as a bedside table to hold my telephone, water, medicine, cosmetics, writing paper, facial tissues, etc. — MARGARET.

DEAR POLLY — Two six-pack soft drink plastic carriers and a wire coat hanger combine to make a unique scarf rack. Straddle and fold-down the plastic carriers lengthwise on the center line over the hanger. Secure with colored cord or rug yarn wound through the holes and up and over through a loop in the cord, making a knot similar to a buttonhole stitch. — CHRIS.

•

DEAR POLLY — I keep a percolator brush near the ironing board for removing lint that collects behind buttons and buttonholes on shirts. — LENORE.

•

DEAR POLLY — To help yourself fasten a tight-fitting hook bracelet, tape one end of the bracelet to your wrist to hold it in place while you fasten the other side to it. — ANN.

•

DEAR POLLY — Timesaver! When paying bills, I often cut the company's name, address and zip from the envelope the bill came in and simply paste this on the envelope enclosing my payment. — JOAN.

DEAR POLLY — When a woven scatter rug begins to fray and ravel, I cut off the frayed part and sew on a binding made from a scrap of material of a contrasting color. There's a lot more wear in that old rug! — ANNA.

•

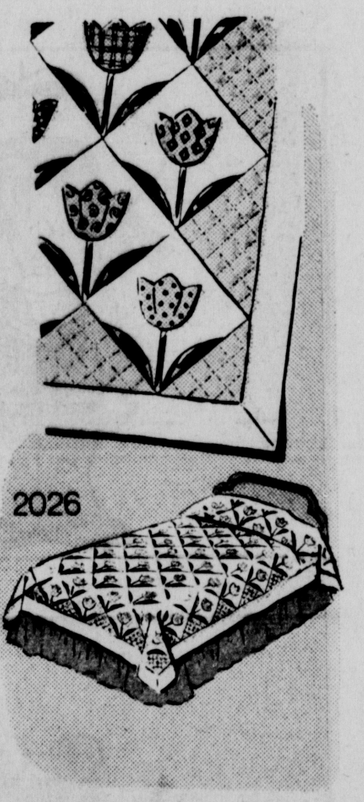

DEAR POLLY — After being cleaned with nail polish remover, the tiny brushes in nail polish bottles make great paint brushes, especially for paint sets or for making delicate detail. — CINDY.

•

DEAR POLLY — To prevent the hook from getting caught in fingers or clothing while carrying a fishing pole, place the hook in a plastic medicine bottle and snap the lid on over the line. — KEVIN.

•

DEAR POLLY — I avoid losing my place while playing the piano or organ by stretching a large (six-inch) rubber band over the music holder and the open sheets of music or the book. — VIRGINIA.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

"HOW DOES A CHICKEN HATCH FROM AN EGG?"

A BABY CHICKEN IS BORN FROM AN EGG THAT COMES FROM THE MOTHER HEN. THE CHICK IS NOT INSIDE THE NEWLY LAID EGG. INSTEAD, WITHIN THE EGG IS A TINY "GERM CELL" THAT WILL DEVELOP INTO THE BABY CHICK. THE YOLK AND WHITE OF THE EGG ARE NOT PART OF THE CHICKEN, BUT FOOD FOR THE GROWING CHICK. THE HEN SITS ON THE EGG TO KEEP IT WARM. WHEN THE CHICK IS READY TO HATCH FROM THE EGG, IT CRACKS THE SHELL WITH ITS SHARP BEAK AND WIGGLES OUT.
